Nereids rolls as Longo proclaims 'Elaine Colson Day' in Waveland

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

When the Krewe of Nerds roles at 1 p.m. today with its usual fanfare, it will be the first time in 39 years without founding member and longtime Captain Elaine Colson. Colson passed away in September, but her influence will be seen this year and for years to come. Much of the planning for this year's season was completed before her passing.

To honor this remarkable woman who contributed so much to both her Krewe and to the city of Waveland, both of which she loved so dearly, this day, January 30 will be proclaimed by Waveland Mayor John Thomas Longo to be Elaine Colson Day. Longo will make the announcement from the mayor's stand during the parade.

Waveland Mayor Tommy Longo has proclaimed Jan. 30 as Elaine Colson Day in honor of the late Nereids Krewe captain.

The citizens of Waveland have Ms. Elaine to thank for the annual parade and the benefits enjoyed because the city is home to the Krewe of Nerds, said friend Herbert Dubuisson, Jr. in a letter to the mayor suggesting Colson be honored.

"It was her hard work and vision that brought Nereids to life and kept it a strong and vibrant Mardi Gras Krewe," Dubuisson said. "Waveland was a place she believed in and worked hard to better for the majority of her life."

An adult and three teenagers have been arrested in connection with recent burglaries at Diamondhead, Hancock County Sheriff Steve Garber reported.

Garber said, "Investigators Andre' Fizer and Matt Barnett and other investigators have recovered many of the items stolen and are still seeking others."

Barnett said, "Justin Chotto, 18, was arrested Thursday and is charged with accessory to burglary. One juvenile age 14 has been implicated in four burglaries, a 16-year old in three of the burglaries and another 16-year-old in one burglary."

"Bond was set at $5,000 for Chotto, and the three juveniles have been turned over to Youth Court for prosecu-

Locals reach out to soldiers in harm's way

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

While attending the Library's Tree Gala during the holidays, about 100 local folks wrote out postcards to servicemen as a part of Operation Dear Abby, a program to send messages from home .to servicemen or women. The cards were a part of a tree display created by Warren Scott and Claire Haun. The cards have been selected to be sent to servicemen being treated at Bethesda National Medical Center in Maryland.

"We just wanted to let people know where the cards would go," said Haun. "The messages on the cards had a common theme, gratitude and hope. We had a hundred, but we could have filled a thousand."

The postcards were produced from a photograph of the tree itself. Included are messages from well wishers ranging from children, veterans, seniors, servicemen home on leave to friends and family of servicemen and women.

"No matter what their political beliefs, people responded in support of their fellow man," Haun said.

The program began in 1967 to send message of hope and encouragement to men and women serving in Vietnam. Anyone can participate. Because of the September 11 terrorist attacks the program was shut down briefly in 2001 because of concerns about potential anthrax attacks through the mail.

In November of that year the program was resurrected using e-mail in place of regular mail. The service experienced 22 million hits during its first month of operation.

Anyone wishing to send an e-mail message to a serviceman or woman may do so by logging onto www.operationdearabby.net.

You will be asked to complete a form and type in your message.

Bay St. Louis Little Theatre seeking its historic playbills

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

Recent renovations at the Bay St. Louis Little Theater have uncovered more than just the need for repairs to the old building. Board member Claire Haun has discovered that scores of historical playbills, revealing the history of 46 years of productions, have also suffered with the years.

During renovations some had fallen from the walls and become torn, covered with sawdust, or even walked on and ruined. Others remaining on the walls had been eaten by silverfish or damaged by the passage of time. Even those covered with plastic have suffered from tears, rips and holes over the years. Of the few framed pieces, many had broken glass or missing backs.

The good news is that with the help and advice of paper and framing experts Gwen and John Impson, theater historians Glenda and Jack Schornick and the support of the Hancock County Historical Society, many, if not all of the original 124 pieces will be catalogued and preserved for future generations.

Paper Conservator for the New York Theater Library Grace Owen has also offered assistance with the project. A photo CD of the catalogued items will be stored at a national repository. The laminated originals will be placed in a metal flat file at the Hancock County Historical Society, said Haun.

Copies of the originals will be returned to the walls of the theater between sheets of Plexiglas which will be inset into the walls of the auditorium, allowing the rustic look of the room to remain.

Bay St. Louis Little Theater president David Yarbrough and board member Claire Haun display historical play bills that will be archived and copied. The theater is asking that anyone with historical documents from the theater join the project.

As word of the project has spread, theater officials say they have already discovered several more playbills in a private collection. They hope that other members of the community who may have historical posters from the theater will add theirs to the preservation project. Anyone interested in working on the project or who is in possession of historical playbills, programs, or art work related to the Bay St. Louis Little Theater can contact newly elected president George Yarbrough at 228-216-0559 or Claire Haun at 228-463-9793.

Basic training at Bay High

BY JOHN WATERMAN
Staff Writer

Thanks to a grant from the Mississippi Emergency management agency, students in Bay High's Physical Education classes and ROTC program to take part in a crisis management workshop on Friday morning.

Sgt. Ernest Taylor, of the Bay St. Louis Police Department said the group of high schoolers that participated in the workshop were already certified in CPR and basic triage work. The students were able to put their skills to use at several stations.

"They have basic knowledge about what to do in a disaster," Taylor said.

Students practiced supporting, or "cribbing" a crippled wall that had a trapped person wedged beneath it, CPR on responsive and unresponsive patients, the Heimlich maneuver and immobilizing patients for transport. Taylor said funds for the project came from a $3,000 grant from the Mississippi Emergency Management Agency. He said he would like to repeat the program at other local schools if MEMA would award another grant.

Two men face drug violation charges

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS
Publisher Emeritus

Two Hancock County residents were arrested early Thursday morning in connection with illegal drug violations, Sheriff Steve Garber said.

Narcotic Division's director Matt Karl said, "Anthony Darrell Necaise, of Kiln, was arrested a little after 1 a.m. Thursday, and charged with the alleged possession of precursors. Duffy B. Cole, 28, Highway 603, North Hancock, was charged with the alleged possession of crystal meth and also possession of precursors."

Karl reported both were lodged in the Hancock County Criminal Justice Facility on Friday. Necaise was booked with no bond, as he was out on bond from Harrison County. Cole's bond was set at $40,000.

"Hancock Deputies Danny Gilkerson, Brandon Hendry and Brian Cuevas were assisting Harrison County Deputies with a traffic stop on Highway 53 inside Hancock County line. A speeding truck approached the group of officers and the driver was flagged down with flashlights, to warn about speeding," Karl said.

"Officers noted the two males in the truck after stopping were drinking beer. The driver could not produce a driver's license and they were asked to exit the vehicle. During the pat down, on Cole officers discovered a small metal container containing the crystal meth," Karl added.

Karl continued, "A further search of the vehicle revealed precursor items such a lithium batteries, red devil lye, dry ice, and other items used in the manufacture of crystal meth. The two suspects were detained and I was notified and along with Agent Abe Long and Clifton (Bubba) Malley responded to their call."

It also so happened the Harrison County stop also revealed crystal meth, which case is being handled by their department, Karl said.

On Tuesday of this past week, in the immediate area on Highway 53 near the Harrison County line, Agent Malley found the remnants of a recent meth lab which had to be cleaned up by a crew from Alabama.

The case involving Necaise and Cole is being investigated by Agent Long.

"We do feel the two we arrested were preparing for a cook," Karl stated.

Remembering Mrs. Grace Ortte

The community is saddened at the death of Mrs. Grace Ortte, who died this past Wednesday.

Mrs. Ortte had just celebrated her birthday on January 20, now folks that was her 106th birthday, making her the oldest person I know, or have known in this county. As a matter of a fact, I took her photo and did an interview for The Echo in 2003, as she celebrated her 105th birthday.

Of those 106 years, Mrs. Ortte has resided over half of them in Hancock County.

It was not too very long ago, I recall seeing her out taking a ride with her daughter Marion Elliott, who has been by her side for so many years.

As a youngster I can recall attending the Star Theatre, which she and her late husband, Edward P. Ortte owned at the intersection of S. Beach Boulevard and Washington Street in Bay St. Louis. Mrs. Ortte was very active in the area and well known and for sure will be missed. Just think, to have been born in one century, then live one complete century and over four years in a following century – there are not too many who have had that opportunity.

To Mrs. Grace's daughter, Marion E. Elliott, granddaughter, Patsy Welch, grandson Ree Elliott, great-grandchildren, and great-great-grandchildren, other relatives, and friends, she will long be remembered.

Do not forget the Krewe of Nereids parade set to roll at 1 p.m. today.

The Krewe of Nereids will be followed by the Krewe of Eros and the Krewe of Hancock.

The parade travels East on Highway 90 from the Kmart parking lot in Waveland to the U.S. Post Office at Bouslog in Bay St. Louis and West on Highway 90 to Our Shopping Center to disband.

A few pointers for parade goers from Waveland Police Chief Jimmy Varnell are; no pets of any kind, including reptiles; dogs, even on leashes will not be allowed on the route.

No glass containers, no skate boarders, bicycles, silly string or snap-and pops-allowed on the parade route. It will help if parade goers will think about the folks who have to clean the parade route, will take along a few plastic bags and stash their trash.

Even if they leave it in the bags on the side of the highway, or on the median, it will be a lot easier to collect the trash bags, then to have to round up the lose litter.

I hope everyone will enjoy themselves at the Nereids parade this afternoon. We still have parades coming up next week and will mention them Thursday and next Sunday.

Serving the 'Inaugural Purpose'

From the Senate

By U.S. Sen. Trent Lott

It was a great honor for me as chairman of the Joint Congressional Committee on Inaugural Ceremonies to emcee the presidential inauguration and to help plan it. Since Washington's day, inaugural ceremonies have not been just about the President, but more so a celebration of a new chapter in American democracy. In a way, it's really not just the President who swears to uphold our Constitution on January 20, but all Americans are recommitting to our nation's common and continuing pursuit of liberty, without regard to our political party, ethnic, religious or social backgrounds.

I used my chairmanship of the Inaugural Committee to promote and honor our state. Mississippians are a proud and talented people. We've contributed well beyond our proportion to the nation's artistic development with world renowned writers, artists, and musicians.

Guy Hovis, a Tupelo native who spent years on the Lawrence Welk Show, began by singing a riveting and inspiring song written by former U.S. Senator and Attorney General John Ashcroft. Many of you may have seen Guy performing in Branson, Missouri, or at events throughout Mississippi where he serves as director of my state offices.

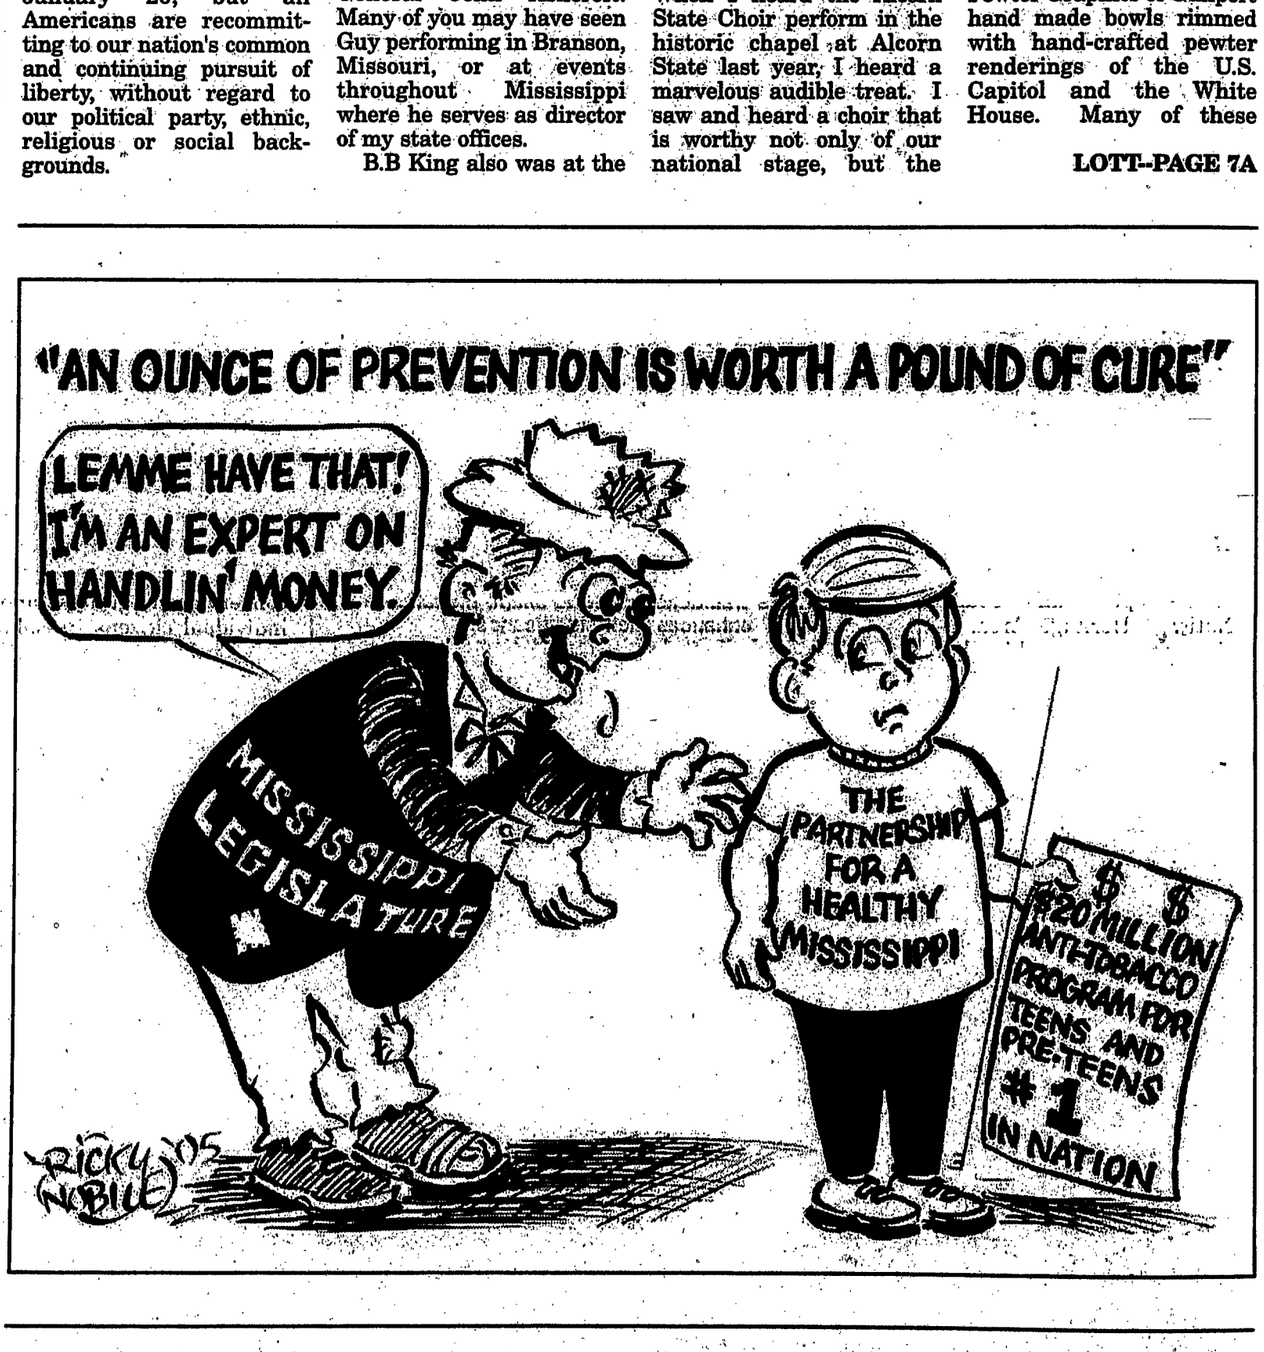

B.B King also was at the inaugural. Mississippians invented the blues, and for most folks, B.B. King is the King of the Blues. People from all over the world make pilgrimages to Mississippi every year to visit our many historical blues sites, particularly in the Delta. The blues is a uniquely American genre of music, and having a living legend like B.B. King take part in the inaugural ceremonies was very fitting and absolutely fantastic.

Mississippi's educational community was well represented by the Alcorn State University Choir, and the Gautier High School and the Stone County High School marching bands. When I heard the Alcorn State Choir perform in the historic chapel at Alcorn State last year, I heard a marvelous audible treat. I saw and heard a choir that is worthy not only of our national stage, but the world stage, too. They are great ambassadors for Alcorn and for Mississippi, and they made a great addition to this inaugural.

On the same token, the Gautier High and Stone County High bands reflected the excellence of their schools and communities. Americans hear a lot about bad schools in the news, but not enough about the many schools that are great places to study, learn and develop leadership skills. These two bands did a great job representing Mississippi and honoring President Bush.

Mississippians also crafted the inaugural gifts presented at this year's traditional inaugural luncheon. Pewter Graphics of Gulfport hand made bowls rimmed with hand-crafted pewter renderings of the U.S. Capitol and the White House. Many of these

Legislative report

From the Mississippi Senate

By State Sen. Scottie Cuevas

WEEK 3

The Mississippi Senate continued to work this week, showing signs of shifting into a higher gear. The final date to introduce bills that are subject to the General Bill/Constitutional deadline has passed.

To date, over 2500 bills have been filed. Local and private bills, revenue bills, and resolutions are not subject to this deadline, so more are certain to come.

Our next big cut-off date is Feb 1st. By that time, committees must have reported all bills and constitutional amendments originating in their own house. After this deadline, we will have a better vision of what specific bills the senate will be debating on the floor.

It is important to bear in mind that the legislative process is deliberate. It takes time and effort to study proposals, determine their effects, and determine if they are affordable. It is the responsibility of the committees to work through all of the bills and bring the most important, potentially influential bills to the floor for a vote.

Our committees have held meetings to begin the process of studying and acting on some of the thousands of bills that have been filed. Consequently, there has not been a great deal of action on the floor. However, we have handled several resolutions, including a resolution honoring former Governor of Mississippi, Kirk Fordice.

The first bill of the session has been officially signed into law. Senate Bill 2325 allocates a deficit appropriation to the Veterans Affairs Board to fund our veteran nursing homes.

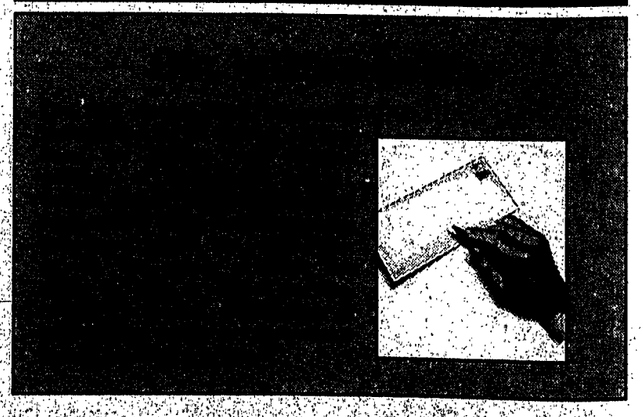

While the Senate is focused on bringing state spending back in line with state revenue, the Veterans Affairs Board has given their assurance that veteran nursing homes are running more efficiently. Additionally, the board has implemented savings plans to ensure a deficit does not occur in the future.

Governor Barbour, who was representing Mississippi at the President's Inauguration, could not be present for the bill signing.

Therefore, he requested Lt. Governor Amy Tuck, acting governor as provided by state statute, to sign Senate Bill 2325 into law. Lt. Governor Tuck was pleased to participate

Hancock among six southern counties designated a 'National Heritage Area'

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Local communities in the six-county area of Southern Mississippi have stronger ties this week as a region because of the hard work and collaborative efforts of the Mississippi Department of Marine Resources (DMR), Comprehensive Resource Management Plan (CRMP) Bureau, stakeholders and our Congressional delegation, Senator Thad Cochran, Senator Trent Lott, Congressman Gene Taylor, Congressman Charles Pickering, Congressman Bennie Thompson and Congressman Roger Wicker.

On November 20, 2004, DMR Executive Director William Walker was notified by Senator Lott that the designation would occur. On December 8, the President signed into law P.L. 108-447.

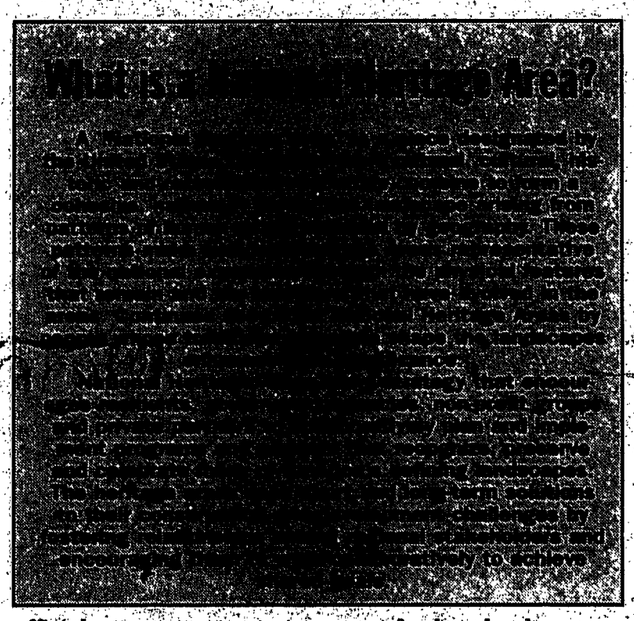

The bill designates Harrison, Hancock, Jackson, Stone, Pearl River and George counties as a National Heritage Area. The National Heritage Area program is designed to preserve the region's historical, cultural, recreational and natural resources. It will increase the public awareness of the significance of the Mississippi Gulf Coast nationally.

The landscape of the Mississippi Gulf Coast National Heritage Area, a six-county area within the Mississippi Coastal Plain that borders the Gulf of Mexico, has been shaped by the natural coastal and riverine environment and a number of cultural influences, including those of early Native Americans and Spanish, French and English settlers. The area contains cultural and historical sites related to these cultures, including the first capital of the Louisiana Territory, in addition to natural, scenic and recreational resources along the coast.

DMR Executive Director William Walker made the official announcement to the public during a CRMP Stakeholder meeting held December 9, 2004. The program will be administered through the Department of Marine Resources, Comprehensive Resource Management Plan Bureau. The designation brings grant funds to local communities to showcase points of interest. The funding allocation for the entire program is $1 million per year for 10 years.

The Hancock County Historical Society is just one of many historical sites located on the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

The DMR/CRMP is developing a management plan for the Heritage Program, which must be approved by the National Park Service. Funds will be allocated through the U.S. Department of Interior upon approval of the management plan. DMR/CRMP will administer the funds locally.

"I appreciate very much the valiant efforts on the part of our Congressional delegation, elected officials in our six counties, various conservation groups and individual citizens to make this designation possible," DMR Executive Director William Walker said. "This program will bring increased federal funding to Coastal Mississippi to allow local groups and organizations to support projects which highlight, preserve and enhance our unique natural, cultural and historical resources."

To learn more about the Mississippi Gulf Coast National Heritage Area, you are invited to attend the next CRMP meeting to be held Feb. 10 at 10 a.m. in the auditorium of the Bolton State Office Building located at 1141 Bayview Avenue in Biloxi.

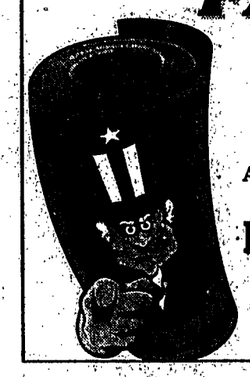

The Mississippi Department of Marine Resources is dedicated to enhancing, protecting and conserving marine interests of the State by managing all marine life, public trust wetlands, adjacent uplands and waterfront areas to provide for the optimal commercial, recreational, educational and economic uses of these resources consistent with environmental concerns and social changes.

Gaming committee report available to public

THE SEA COAST ECHO

The Mississippi Department of Marine Resources (DMR) has made copies of the report "Mississippi Gulf Coast Gaming: Safeguarding the Future," prepared by the Mississippi ad hoc Gaming Committee, available to the public.

The report includes the Committee's assessment of the current exposure of casinos to hurricanes at all levels and the economic impact of each type of occurrence. It also identifies potential options that casinos might consider to increase their level of protection against storms, to enable better maintenance of their in-water structures and to provide associated positive impacts on the industry.

DMR Executive Director William Walker, who chaired the Committee, said, "The intent of the Committee is not to rank these options or to provide recommendations, but rather to simply point out the pros and cons of each option from an unbiased perspective."

Reports are available to the public free-of-charge and may be picked up at the DMR office, 1141 Bayview Avenue, Biloxi, while supplies last. The DMR office is open Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. For more information, contact the DMR at 374-5000.

Interested parties may also obtain a copy of the free report by calling the Mississippi Gulf Coast Gaming Association at 388-0087. Office hours are Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

IF YOU'RE NOT AT YOUR LAST JOB, YOUR 401(k) SHOULDN'T BE EITHER.

God Looked

God looked around his garden and found an empty place.
He then looked down upon the earth and saw the pain in your face.
He put his arms around you and lifted you to rest.
God's garden must be beautiful, he always takes the best.
He saw the road was getting rough, and the hills were hard to climb,
So He closed your weary eyelids, and whispered "Peace Be Thine."
It broke our hearts to lose you, but you didn't go alone,
For part of us went with you the day God called you home.

Mauffray was King of the Dance

The county will be mourning the loss of Conrad Mauffray, 74, who passed away on Wednesday. Mauffray was many things to many people – husband, father, grandfather, friend.

The list of organizations he was an active member of is long and his service to the community well documented.

But the one thing that Mauffray may be remembered most for, say those who knew and loved him, is his dancing. He was the "king of the dance floor," said daughter Donna.

"I don't think there was a woman in the county from 9 to 90 that he hadn't swept up on the dance floor," Donna said. "It was his passion."

In the earlier days, Mauffray and wife Marie made the rounds of square dancing halls and danced everything from the jitterbug to the fox-trot to the waltz.

When Marie passed away about four years ago, Mauffray continued to dance. He could make anyone look good on the dance floor, many said, whether they were an experienced dancer or had two left feet. His expertise and pleasant personality made him many friends all over the area. Everybody knew him and loved him, said Donna. Mauffray was the father of five and the grandfather of sixteen.

9th grade Rocks claim Mid Coast title

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
Staff Writer

The St. Stanislaus Rock-a-chaws' ninth grade basketball team claimed the Mid Coast Athletic Conference basketball championship with a thrilling 34-31 win over George County on Thursday. The loss by George County is the first loss for this group of junior high Rebels since last losing to the Rocks in the seventh grade.

SSC head varsity coach Jay Ladner was on site to view the ninth grade tournament held at SSC and he was impressed with what he saw of his young Rocks. Ladner stated, "It was probably the best effort on any grade level that I have seen since I have been at SSC. The credit goes to their team work, dedication and discipline because they beat a team that they should not have been on the court with."

Lott

"Made in Mississippi" mementos are destined to be handed down for generations - a lasting legacy for this inauguration and for the Mississippi artisans who made them.

Most of all, on January 20 we made honoring our military men and women the top priority of this inaugural, as we should in the midst of our War on Terror. Since September 11, 2001, our military has protected our nation and liberated millions around the world. Some folks have questioned the privately-raised $40 million cost of the inaugural ceremonies, but it's a small price to pay to honor our military. The taxpayer cost itself, driven upward mostly by security measures, reflects the new threats our world faces. And we can't forget that it's our soldiers, sailors, airmen, marines and coast guard who stand between us and these deadly threats.

In this inaugural the President outlined an ambitious agenda for his second term, using "freedom to fight tyranny" as his central focus. Mississippi has always been one of President Bush's strongest bastions of support, and this inauguration showed it. But, more importantly, this ceremony reflected not just America's commitment to this President, or any President - but to our nation's enduring constitutional principals and the many uniformed people who keep our republic free.

The Pirates led 13-11 after the first period but the Rocks took a narrow 23-22 lead into intermission.

SSC extended their lead at the end of the third period 32-27. In the fourth period, SSC got up on the Pirates 43-29 with about three minutes remaining in the game. But, the Pirates didn't quit. Little by little they chipped away at the SSC lead and Brandon Miller's three-point shot with :56 seconds left brought Pass Christian to within two points at 44-42.

Reggie McIntosh missed an opportunity to tie the game at the line with :36 left to play.

SSC senior guard Mike Cure gave the Rocks some insurance when he sank two free throws with :30 left to play. The Pirates answered with a bucket to bring the difference back to two points.

Mike Rice made 1-of-2 charity shots for a three-point difference for the Rocks. Brandon Miller's three-point attempt rimmed out at the buzzer that would have forced overtime.

SSC head coach Jay Ladner commented, "Give Pass Christian the credit. They never quit fighting out there. We have played 25 games so far this season and we are still making mistakes that this team should not be making. A lack of experience is no longer an excuse."

Mike Rice led SSC with 16 points followed by Owen McNally and Ludovic Dovonu with 10 points each. Brandon Miller led all scorers with 18 points while Armond Porter chipped in 12 points for the Pirates.

SSC will travel to Gautier on Tuesday for a Division 8 contest.

PRCC hands Wolves their first division loss

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Freshman forward Alton Robinson of Hattiesburg High finished the night with a game-high 23 points and scored 13 points during the Wildcats' scoring surge, including three treys. He hit his last three pointer at the buzzer to give PRCC its 12-point lead at the half.

After Lamitra Daggs of New Orleans sank a pair of foul shots to tie it up at 14-14 midway in the first half, Co-Lin's Jessica Melton hit a trey to kick off a 22-10 to put the Lady Wolves up 36-24 at the half.

The Lady Wildcats managed to pull to within five with 15:10 left, then cut Co-Lin's lead to 50-43 at the 9:17 mark before the Lady Wolves ended the game with a 24-16 run to take the 15-point victory.

A penny's worth of power.

How much power will a penny buy? Enough to:
- Wash one load of laundry
- Run a small appliance for 2 hours.
- Run a ceiling fan for 1 hour.
- Watch a color TV for 20 minutes.
- Burn a 40-watt bulb for 2 hours.

Electricity is still a really good value. Now, just imagine what you could do with a dime.

Bay Catholic celebrates Catholic Schools Week

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Bay Catholic Elementary (BCE) is celebrating Catholic Schools Week from January 30th through February 4th.

The week begins on Sunday, January 30th at 8am with the Celebration of the Eucharist at Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church, featuring music and songs from the BCE Students. Monday, January 31st, Bay Catholic will host an Open House from 9 a.m. until 1 p. m. for prospective parents and students to learn more about what the school has to offer.

Registration for new students begins Monday, February 21st. Located at 301 South Second Street in Bay St. Louis, BCE has brought quality education in a faith filled environment to the people of Hancock County for over 40 years. BCE is a Catholic Interparochial School for Pre-K three year olds through 6th Grade in the Diocese of Biloxi School system. BCE is accredited by Mississippi and the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

The mission and goal for students who attend BCE is to nurture Gospel values in a peaceful Catholic School environment of living faith and academic excellence. BCE strives to build responsible citizens according to Catholic tradition and goals. The mission is realized by developing the following goals for each student: cooperation, high standards, industriousness, interpersonal relations, kindness, respect, self-respect, success, teamwork, trust and truth.

BCE has faith in education. With 300 students enrolled annually, BCE has an impressive 13:1 student-teacher ratio. This ratio gives the qualified teaching staff the opportunity to provide personal attention to the academic and spiritual needs of children. The school is open to individuals of all faiths, and offers a complete education to make Christian faith both living and active in the everyday lives of children. The BCE philosophy is to provide a faith community that fosters spiritual enlightenment, intellectual growth, emotional development, and social adjustment.

"Bay Catholic is a feeder school to Our Lady Academy (OLA) and St. Stanislaus," said a BCE and OLA Alum, and mother of twin daughters. "The transition from BCE to OLA will be much easier for our girls when they reach the 7th grade," she said.

Tuesday, February 1st, BCE students will join students from Our Lady Academy and St. Stanislaus for their Annual Tri-school Mass, celebrated by Bishop Thomas Rodi. Following the mass, teachers and students will be recognized for their commitment to Catholic Education during a special luncheon. The week will wrap up on Friday, February 4th, with BCE's Annual Mardi Gras Parade, starting at noon from the OLG Community Center grounds. The public is invited to attend.

Bay Cath's Gleber 'just wants to teach'

BY BETSY GAGNET

On any given day at Bay Catholic Elementary, a visitor is likely to see a small, smiling woman walking the school hallways in her signature Birkenstocks on her way to her second grade classroom. Armed with stacks of papers or perhaps a handful of her latest religion lesson, second grade teacher Kay Gleber goes about her job with the same quiet dedication that she has shown since the day she started.

It was in 1961 that a nervous, but excited Mrs. Gleber entered the doors of Our Lady of the Gulf School to begin her first day of teaching. Little did she know that she was beginning a 35 year career of teaching young minds to think and filling young hearts with the joys of the Catholic faith."I just wanted to teach," said Mrs. Gleber. "I taught with a sister who had been teaching for 17 years and she taught me how to teach. I was nervous, but I had Sister Vincent."

When Our Lady of the Gulf School merged with St. Rose de Lima School forming Bay Catholic Elementary, Mrs. Gleber taught in the lower grades at the St. Rose campus. Over time she made her way through every grade from Kindergarten through sixth, taking ten years off to start her family. Each new grade brought with it a new challenge. There were challenging years with 45 kids in a first grade classroom and years when the biggest challenge was to keep the school up and operating.

Despite the challenges, the biggest goal has never changed, that of introducing children to the sacraments, practices and the love of the Catholic Church. In second grade, where she has taught for the past 15 years, Mrs. Gleber prepares young Catholics to receive the sacraments of First Reconciliation and Holy Communion, sharing with them the love of her faith. Even in this, her thirty-fifth year of teaching, the experience still touches her heart.

"Just to bring them to Jesus renews me each year," she says. "It's so wonderful to see their little faces as they receive Communion for the first time."

Through the years Mrs. Gleber's own family has changed as much as the kids she has taught. She and her husband M.J. have been married for 40 years and have five grown children, each of whom attended Bay Catholic. Eight of their ten grandchildren attended Bay Catholic, including current students Perre' and Aric Carter. The Catholic education they provided for their children was something the Gleber's both felt strongly about.

Teacher Kay Gleber is a constant, quiet force at Bay Catholic Elementary School.

"Raising five kids and putting them through Bay Catholic, OLA and St. Stanislaus on the salaries of a mail carrier and a parochial school teacher was not always easy," said M.J. Gleber, a retired mail carrier. "It was a sacrifice, but I wouldn't change anything. It was more important than a new car or a new house."

Daughter Christy Carter decided to follow in her mother's footsteps and now also teaches at Bay Catholic. Christy finds inspiration in her mother and in the lessons she taught both at school and at home.

"When I was in high school my mom made $1.00 a month which was the difference between tuition and her salary," said Carter. "She certainly could have made more at another school, but her devotion to God and her faith kept her here."

"No matter what has happened in our lives, Mom always said to all of us that if you have faith in God, everything works."

Mrs. Gleber's son, Richard Gleber, agreed with his sister that their mother truly lived the lessons she taught at school-sometimes more than they would have liked as kids.

"She was always the best peacemaker," he said with a laugh. "If we were fighting she would sing 'And They'll Know We Are Christians' until we'd stop fighting. Honestly, we finally had to stop because we were so fed up with the song!"

Like her own children and the children she teaches, the faculty at Bay Catholic, too, looks to Mrs. Gleber for guidance, especially in areas of Catholic faith.

"I feel privileged and blessed to be working with someone who not only is a wonderful educator, but more importantly is such a strong Catholic," said fellow second grade teacher Shannon Collins. " My own parents gave me my faith, but Mrs. Gleber has helped me as an adult to reconnect to my religion. She has brought me, along with all of our precious second graders, closer to Jesus."

Fellow teachers Martha Merrigan and Connie Heitzmann agreed.

"Kay has helped us (Bay Catholic) to establish and hold onto a living Catholic faith and tradition," said Merrigan.

"She's contributed so much to my own spiritual formation. She is a great friend," added Heitzmann. "In addition to our school family, she reaches out to people in need in the community. She's such a soothing influence on those in need of comfort. You can always depend on her and her smiling face. She's a constant."

Standing barely five feet tall, Mrs. Gleber is often the measuring stick for older kids who have hit growth spurts. It has become a sort of "right of passage" for students to pass Mrs. Gleber in height. And while she might be small of stature, if measured by her faith, she stands much taller.

Mrs. Gleber (r) with daughter Christy Carter and grandsons Perre' and Aric Carter.

Bay St. Louis Fire Department lauds employee achievements

THE SEA COAST ECHO

With an impressive training and on the job work background in fire inspection and investigations 15-year veteran firefighter, Lt Richard Trudell, has been promoted to fulltime inspector and investigator. Trudell, who continues to work closely with Fire Chief Robert Gavagnie, works with Code Enforcement Official Bill Carrigee, particularly in plan review and construction inspection.

"Bay Saint Louis has a steady stream of new construction and an abundance of restoration of older buildings ongoing and the expertise Lt Trudell has brings another layer of protection for community investors," said Mayor Eddie Favre about the appointment.

In addition to traditional training as a firefighter Lt Trudell has received specialized training through the State Fire Academy including Fire Inspector 1031-1, Fire Investigator (incendiary), and the 80-hour Fire Investigator 1033 class. Lt. Trudell is also certified as a fire inspector with the National Fire Protection Association.

Bay Saint Louis has adopted the NFPA Code and the International Fire Code which are followed by the city's Code Enforcement Office.

Lt Rezese Brunell, a 7-year veteran of the Bay Saint Louis Fire Department, has completed and passed the test for the Emergency Medical Technician National Registry. He joins fireman Rusty Shultz as the certified EMT's for A shift under the command of Captain Monty Strong.

Brunell was promoted to Lieutenant in December 2004. He has attended the Mississippi Firefighters Academy, Pearl, and is certified as a Firefighter, Fire Apparatus Driver/Operator, Hazardous Materials Operations and Technician. In addition he is also certified in Rescue System 1, Incident Command System High Rise Operator and recently completed the Passenger Train Emergency Response certification in Meridian. Fireman Brian Bilich

In preparation for being accepted in the next class for new firemen at the Mississippi Fire academy new firefighter Brian Bilich has passed the Candidate Physical Agility Test (CPAT). There is only a 60% pass rate for this strenuous agility test.

"This test is where the rubber meets the road in firefighting. If a candidate cannot pass this test he or she is not eligible for the Academy and therefore is someone that won't have success in firefighting as a career choice," said Asst Chief Pam San Fillippo. "We are very proud that this young firefighter has dedicated himself to this type of achievement with only six months service with the department."

NEW FIREFIGHTERS ASSIGNED

Fire Chief Robert Gavagnie has announced the hiring of the following firefighters to join the department. "It is unusual for this departrment to have much of a turnover, but we have lost several firefighters who are now in Iraq as firefighters. Lt. Shawn Self and firefighter Robbie Giveans left in October and we will lose firefighter Eddie Bourgeois this week. We welcome these new men to our service and know that they will do a great job for Bay Saint Louis."

Elliott Edwards, a graduate of the Bay Saint Louis Fire Recruit Class, has been hired as a full-time firefighter, assigned to A Shift under the command of Captain Monty Strong. Edwards said," I love this job. The guys are great and work with me everyday to succeed. I love kids, so they immediately assigned me as the new "Sparky" (the departments mascot) to work in the schools and at special events."

Re-joining the department is firefighter Alan Spence. Spence has experience with both the Bay Saint Louis and Diamondhead departments is a graduate of the Mississippi Fire Academy. In his spare time Spence is an avid Civil War buff and participates in reenactments. He joins Captain Stanley Necaise and B Shift.

Steven Parker, another experienced firefighter and graduate of the Mississippi Fire A6demy, has been assigned to C Shift under the command of Captain Rodney Auguzin. Parker is also a member of the Gulf Coast Search and Rescue Unit with his German Shepherd rescue dog, Sasha. "I like the size of this department and the training opportunities afforded me with the Bay. I'm not a number here like you can be with larger departments."

THIS DEVOTIONAL PAGE IS BROUGHT TO YOU BY THE FOLLOWING BUSINESSES WHO ENCOURAGE YOU TO ATTEND THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE

Are You A Satisfied Customer?

One of the prime requirements for any successful business are satisfied customers. Those in the business world are keenly aware that a satisfied customer will most likely return to them in the future, and that they will recommend their products and services to others. To be a satisfied satisfied customer, we need to be treated fairly and honestly, and in a civilized manner; we do not like being taken advantage of, cheated or ridiculed in any way. Likewise, on a personal level, we should also strive to have satisfied customers. Everyone we come in contact with is somewhat of a customer and we should be selling our friendship, goodwill and cheerfulness. The Bible tells us to treat others as we want them to treat us, and when dealing with others this "Golden Rule" is necessary for us to have and keep enjoyable relationships. Dissension in one's family, or in the workplace, or with anyone we deal with, is contrary to the way our Lord wants us to live our lives. And although it is not always easy to reflect God's goodwill to others, when we are cordial to others, we receive enjoyment and we are blessed by extending God's love.

Therefore, whatever you want men to do to you, do also to them, for this is the Law and the Prophets.

Do we have a 'God gene?'

Reflections on Life

by Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

Bent on eliminating the mention of God or any reference to God from every public venue, gathering, school, activity or display, dogged secularists are using all legal or bully-centered toeholds to remove prayer and anything which remotely features God.

As we saw during the recent Christmas season, it is really a reach to go to the length of outlawing even Santa Claus or the greeting "Merry Christmas!" from all public contacts, communications, displays and greetings. "Happy Winter Solstice!" or something else just as weird seems to be the kind of greeting acceptable to rampaging secularists.

At the opposite end of the spectrum, there are people who claim that we humans have a God gene which dictates that we do seek God out and mention God in all public places and situations, and that we interact with God in every phase of our private and public life.

Time Magazine's October 25, 2004 cover asks the challenging question: "Does our DNA compel us to seek a higher power? Believe it or not, some scientists say yes."

"Is God in our genes?" Jeffrey Kluger goes on to ask in his provocative study questioning whether religion is a product of evolution. In stating that it is easy to see the divinity in the environs of the earthly paradise of Bali, the author seems to be in full agreement with St. Paul who views all of creation in a similar manner.

In his letter to the Romans, chapter 1:18-20, Paul appears to endorse something innate in us which responds to the most intimate forces and marvels of creation itself:

"The wrath of God is indeed being revealed from heaven against every impiety and wickedness of those who suppress the truth by their wickedness. For what can be known about God is evident to them, because God made it evident to them. Ever since the creation of the world, his invisible attributes of eternal power and divinity have been able to be understood and perceived in what he has made. As a result, they have no excuse."

Even apart from the imposing, spectacular fauna, flora, mountains and waters around the world which mesmerize us and draw us into wonder and meditation, the workaday, everyday, pedestrian things of life have their own charm and transcendent power.

Those interviewed told Kluger that the overwhelming draw of faith and devotion is not so much a thing one can lay a finger on, but rather a deep-seated feeling of a Higher Power from whom all people and things originate and to whom they are answerable.

Kluger bolstered his thesis by quoting the incomparable Albert Einstein who made enough profound utterances to fill a small book on theology. This is the physicist's pregnant statement: "Science without religion is lame, religion without science is blind."

At this point, I knew I had to run to the internet where I had seen some astounding quotations from the redoubtable Einstein. Surely, if anyone was able to see God in the atoms, molecules and forces of the universe, it would be Einstein. Just as I suspected, there was far more on the internet than I was able handle within a few short hours.

For instance, Einstein at times comes off as very ambivalent in his attitude toward God, seemingly implying that to him God meant the wondrous structure of the universe:

"It was, of course, a lie what you read about my religious convictions, a lie which is being systematically repeated. I do not believe in a personal God and I have never denied this but have expressed it clearly. If something is in me which can be called religious, then it is the unbounded admiration for the structure of the world so far as our science can reveal it." (Albert Einstein: The Human Side, edited by Helen Dukas)

On the other hand, the greatest of the astrophysicists certainly played hide-and-seek with the God gene, proclaiming himself a believer of sorts:

"I'm not an atheist, and I don't think I can call myself a pantheist. We are in the position of a little child entering a huge library filled with books in many languages. The child knows someone must have written those books. It does not know how. It does not understand the languages in which they are written. The child dimly suspects a mysterious order in the arrangement of the books but doesn't know what it is. That, it seems to me, is the attitude of even the most intelligent human being toward God. We see the universe marvelously arranged and obeying certain laws but only dimly understand these laws. Our limited minds grasp the mysterious force that moves the constellations." (Einstein and Religion, by Max Jammer, Princeton University Press)

These thoughts of one of history's greatest minds, plucked from many scores of such utterances of his, are enough to send our minds spinning out of control. Teasingly, he comes eerily close to St. Paul again where Paul tells the Corinthians:

"You are our letter, written in our hearts, known and read by all, shown to be a letter of Christ administered to us, written not in ink but by the Spirit of the living God, not on tablets of stone but on tablets that are hearts of flesh." (2 Corinthians 3:1-3)

Again, the book The God Gene: How Faith Is Hardwired into Our Genes (Doubleday), runs down the same path as Paul does in Romans 2:14-15:

"For when the Gentiles who do not have the law by nature observe the prescriptions of the law, they are a law for themselves even though they do not have the law. They show that the demands of the law are written in their hearts, while their conscience also bears witness and their conflicting thoughts accuse or even defend them."

Renowned theologians have taught for many centuries that God has embedded in the hearts of all humans an unwritten law called natural law. Even in the absence of specific moral instructions in some human beings, this natural law explains the red flags, doubts and warnings put forth by our consciences and our inner sensibilities.

Scripture Says . . .

By Ed Young

Praise God every day

As you enter the church door a program is handed to you that says "welcome to the praise and worship hour."

Songs are sung and prayers are prayed and a sermon is delivered. Time spent there: One hour, to the minute.

This is usually all the praise and worship the Almighty will receive that week. To many churchgoers, their religious obligations have been fulfilled.

However, praises and admiration for the Lord should be done everyday. A morning or night should not pass without telling the Lord how grateful we are for His love toward us.

Having a personal, private, intimate talk with the Lord is what the Almighty looks forward to.

This writer has come to believe that our Heavenly Father wants us to realize how much He really cares for us. As humans, we simply can't conceive the Creator desires such a close relationship.

David the shepherd lad, David, the King of Israel, knew the heart of God; when he wrote "The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures, He leads me beside the still waters, He restores my soul. Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life. And I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever."(Psalm 23.6)

We are something special to God. Think of Calvary's Cross. Notice the whipping post His son was tied to.

Can we not realize He desires our praise and worship not just on Sunday?

Do you suffer from 'Enlightened Self-interest?'

We live in an enlightened age. We think we are enlightened because we have thrown off the old taboos.

The old puritanical moral standards, which held us in check, have been discarded.

Now we are free to express ourselves in more creative ways. Society can advance to the utopian ideals of equality and true human dignity. It all sounds so good.

But where is this kind of thinking leading us? The sexual revolution of the sixties brought a flood of illegitimacy. Over twenty-six percent of the births in America now occur outside of marriage.

The number of single parent homes is skyrocketing.

Millions of children are brought into the world without the benefit of a loving mother and father living in a committed relationship. Children, growing up in single-parent homes, are more likely to be 'at risk.' That this high sounding enlightenment has led to turmoil has biblical precedent.

People can have deep spiritual experiences and not be true followers of God. It is possible for individuals to have special gifts and receive light from God regarding the Bible and yet remain unconverted. As in the secular enlightenment just mentioned, religious enlightenment is possible when people are on the road to destruction.

It might even be called enlightened self-interest. But that's the problem. Without Godly love, "it profits me nothing" (I Corinthians 13:3).

Hancock County HOME Program Public Hearing Notice February 15, 2005

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors is considering applying to Mississippi Development Authority for a HOME Grant of up to $350,000 for Home Rehabilitation. The State of Mississippi has been allocated approximately $15 million in HOME funds that will be made available to cities and counties on a competitive basis to undertake eligible community development activities. These funds must be used for one of the following purposes:

1. to benefit low-and moderate-income persons;
2. to aid in the prevention or elimination of slums or blight; or
3. to meet other community development needs having a particular urgency because existing conditions pose a series and immediate threat to the health or welfare of the community where other financial resources are not available to meet such needs.

The activities for which these funds may be used are in the areas of housing. More specific details regarding eligible activities, program requirements, and the rating system will be provided at a public hearing, which will be held at, Hancock County Courthouse, 150 Main Street, Bay St. Louis, MS 39520, on February 15, 2005 at 6:00 p.m. The purpose of this hearing will be to obtain citizen input into the development of the application.

Publish by Order of the Board of Supervisors of Hancock County, Mississippi, this the 20th day of January, 2005.

PUBLIC NOTICE
The Diamondhead Water & Sewer District is constantly looking for ways to improve and provide effective, efficient service for the Diamondhead community. Some of the concerns we have received in the past are; customers were required to dial more than one number after hours to get help. In light of this, the "District" has decided to begin using an answering service in which your calls will automatically be connected to the service by dialing our normal business phone number of (228)-255-5813. The use of an answering service will simplify the procedure and make the reporting and documenting of after hours emergencies easier. This service will go into effect beginning February 1st 2005. # Destination Weddings Marry the Ceremony and Honeymoon

Perhaps you've dreamed of getting married on a white sandy beach or in an English rose garden. If you can't find the picturesque setting you desire, a destination wedding may be the perfect option for you. Ten percent of all weddings (150,000 a year) are destination weddings, according to the Today Show, which threw an all-expense-paid destination wedding in 2004 for a lucky couple. In fact, destination weddings, sometimes called "weddingmoons" are becoming increasingly popular — especially with celebrities. Golfer Tiger Woods is on that long list as he recently tied the knot on the Caribbean island of Barbados. It's not hard to figure out their appeal: They offer many amenities that traditional weddings can't ... an amazing backdrop for your celebration and a locale that is full of fun.

An informal candlelit reception may be one perk of your destination wedding. The festivities often begin as soon as you arrive!

ADVANTAGES OF GETTING AWAY

There are many advantages to a destination wedding. First, it is innovative and intimate. Today's couples have friends and family members stretched across the country. Many are unable to make a long trip only to stay at a wedding for a few hours. However, when offered the opportunity to spend several days in an exotic locale, these distant relatives and friends may look favorably upon attending and spending more time with the happy couple.

You may be surprised to discover that destination weddings can be less expensive than traditional affairs. Since they are generally informal, you'll save on the cost of expensive dresses and tuxedos and limousine service. Many couples offer to forgo gifts in exchange for a guest's attendance at the wedding. This saves on guests' wedding-related expenses. In addition, many resorts offer exclusive all-inclusive packages that take care of flowers, photography, food and accommodations. Add it all up and you could save considerably and still have a wonderful wedding.

Another major advantage to the "weddingmoon" is that the relaxation and fun begins the minute you arrive at your destination. And while the planning of such an event may be a bit hectic, once you arrive, you'll have the freedom to relax the day before your ceremony instead of running hundreds of errands and stressing on the big day. It is definitely worth it to avoid the frenzy of last-minute details and coordination of vendors so common with traditional weddings.

PLANNING YOUR EVENT

Just as with a traditional wedding, planning is the key to making a destination wedding a success. Here are some tips to follow, courtesy of WeddingChannel.com:

About our cover bride ...

Our bride is Chelsea Caldwell of Diamondhead. She is the daughter of James and Penny Caldwell. She is engaged to be married to Kasey Wilson, formerly of Salt Lake City, Utah, who now lives in Diamondhead. Chelsea is posing at the Palace in the Pass in Pass Christian, where her wedding will take place. She is modeling a bridal gown by Bonny MT in diamond white satin, courtesy of Yvonne's Bridalaire in Bay St. Louis. The embroidered bodice of the formal gown is accented with crystals and pearls. The pattern is repeated on the back of the bodice, which features a lace-up closure insuring a good fit. The front of the skirt falls to an A-line while the back features inverted pleating from the back waist to the edge of the chapel-length train. She is wearing a silver tiara of crystals and pearls with a corded edge veil of illusion. Chelsea's bouquet was courtesy of Adams-Lorraine Florist of Bay St. Louis.

Your Honeymoon-Planning Timeline

Many couples say the best part of the wedding is .... the honeymoon! Just like your wedding, it will take some advanced effort to make your romantic getaway just right. Follow this plan and you'll be guaranteed to have a memorable first vacation as husband and wife:

6 months to 1 year: If your honeymoon is during a high travel time, select your destination. Decide on a location that you are both happy with. Book airline and hotel reservations. Make your initial deposit.

3 to 6 months: Apply for a passport or renew the one you have if it's about to expire. Reserve a rental car. Obtain vaccinations or medical clearance if needed. Consider travel insurance or travel protection plans. Make sure you have the proper travel documents.

2 to 3 months: Make final travel payments. Write a list of items to pack. Ensure you have enough doses of your regular prescriptions. Purchase travel items like film, batteries, travel-size toiletries, electrical adapters, and a hand-held translator. Book excursions, show tickets, boat tours or side trips. Make arrangements for pets and house sitting.

1 month before: Distribute your travel itinerary to your family. Make a list of valuables, including your credit-card numbers. Make sure you have your travel documents. Get foreign currency or traveler's checks. Reconfirm travel reservations.

2 to 3 weeks before: Go over your packing list, and get anything else you need. Assemble tickets, boarding passes and all important documents. Have any clothes altered, laundered or dry cleaned. Begin setting out things to pack.

1 week before: Temporarily suspend mail and newspaper delivery. Make and pack a list of addresses and stationery for thank-you notes. Arrange transportation from the wedding to the airport.

2 to 3 days before: Reconfirm flight reservations. Clean out the refrigerator. Empty the garbage. Set light timers. Mow the lawn. Buy flight items, such as magazines, books, gum, etc. Pack your luggage and carry-on. Set up automatic reply on your e-mail and change the message on your voice mail. Check the weather for your destination.

Departure day: Make sure you are carrying all of your travel documents, and allow enough time for airport check-in. Have fun!

Is Eloping the Right Option for You?

According to many wedding planners, the top reasons why couples choose to elope are: to have an affordable wedding; to save time; to maintain their sanity; to have fun; and to have freedom from the norm. Sometimes, eloping — or running away to get married — is the only option when a couple faces opposition to the marriage by one or more of the parents due to religious, racial or cultural misconceptions. For those getting married a second time, eloping means they don't have to go through the wedding planning process all over again. The reasons go on and on.

Eloping takes little preparation and is usually a small private wedding with a ceremony restricted to the bride and groom (who may or may not wear wedding attire) and a witness or two. The ceremony is followed by a dinner and a small wedding cake and, of course, a honeymoon. Although elopement typically is a secret, it doesn't have to be. It may or may not include a few close friends and even the couple's parents.

When you choose to elope, you should not be pressured into it, and it should feel right. Here are some important questions to ask yourself before getting on that plane, courtesy of weddinggazette.com, an online wedding planning resource.

Q. Will my family be hurt by not being included? And do I care about not having a real wedding?

A. You should consider your family's feelings before money and personal feelings. You may want to call your parents before you make the big leap, just to let them in on the secret. You might also want to include them in your elopement plans if you don't want to have a huge, expensive wedding. Or, perhaps you feel like it would do more harm than good. It's completely your call.

Following getting hitched, there's the issue of announcing that your marriage has occurred. Some couples throw a "reception" or big party after they've wed, which is a great way for family and friends to feel included. Others simply send a card which announces their marriage and their new name, address, etc. A personal note explaining the reasons for eloping is often included to soothe any hurt feelings.

Before you decide to elope, consider how it may affect your family and friends and, most importantly, you and your future partner.

Lastly, most couples who have eloped say that, in the end, you should do what you want to do. After all, it's your marriage and, if you want to do it your way, then so be it. But if you will look back with regret on your decision not to have a traditional wedding, then maybe you can find a way to include others without your wedding day getting out of control.

Q. Can my savings be better spent?

A. "We would rather buy a house than spend all that cash on a wedding that only lasts a few hours!" This sentiment is often expressed by a lot of couples who feel that the unbelievable amount of money spent on a traditional wedding would be better spent on their future. However, eloping is not the only solution. If you still wish to include those closest to you, there are ways to spend a lot less and still have your friends and families there, like holding a backyard wedding or destination wedding where everyone pays their own way. You'll still have expenses, but they may be more in tune with your budget.

If you feel you don't have any other choice but to elope due to financial reasons, think over your decision carefully. You must be at peace with your decision or you might have regrets later on. Express your concerns to family members who may be able to pitch in.

Q. Should we still register and receive gifts, even if we don't have anyone at our wedding?

A. This is a complicated issue because many times people close to you may feel insulted or hurt that you didn't want to include them in your ceremony, but you still want them to buy you gifts. Most etiquette mavens recommend that you not register for gifts, but if you want to have a reception for your family and friends, you are more than welcome to accept any gifts they may bring.

Q. Even if the ceremony is going to be private, can we send announcements letting everyone know we're going to elope?

A. Eloping, by definition, is a secret, unplanned, getaway wedding without anyone's consent. So, if you plan to tell everyone you just want to have a private ceremony, you're actually just having a nontraditional, destination wedding. In that case, announcements are recommended, and gifts are acceptable.

Choosing to elope is a personal decision and requires careful thought. It all depends on what you and your partner both want as a couple and how you envision your "dream day."

A Dress Every Bridesmaid Will Love

Seafoam green with puffy sleeves and a turtleneck. This is an example of a bridesmaid dress that definitely won't be worn again! With a wealth of bridesmaid styles and colors available, there's no reason for bridal parties to be anything but stunning and smiling on the big day. Even better, you'll be the best-loved bride if you give them something that they won't mind wearing again.

Don't let the process overwhelm you. It's supposed to be fun! As the bride, you and your attendants should consider the following when choosing a dress:

Color: You may have dreamed of dressing your girls in pastel pink since you were 2, but that hue might not look good on your redheaded sister. Choose a color you that complements the girls' complexions and hair color. Dark colors like navy, hunter green and black look good on almost everyone. Pastels look best on blondes and dark-haired girls with fair complexions but won't flatter redheads and darker complexions. If you do want pastels, go for rose-petal pinks, light yellows and pastel blues.

Some brides pick one color that everyone will wear. Others choose a style and let their bridesmaids pick the color. Or you can pick the color (purple) and let the bridesmaid choose a different intensity (eggplant or lilac).

Fabric: Avoid fabrics that are just plain bad, like '80s taffeta. Today's designers are using fabrics like velvet, chiffon, crepe and matte jersey that are sleek and slimming.

Style: Do you want one-piece dresses or two-piece ensembles? Some top-skirt sets let you play mix and match, allowing girls to achieve unique looks that make them happy. So variety doesn't get out of hand, you can set guidelines, such as nothing above the knee.

If you want everyone to wear the same style, choose something that suits the largest size in the group. A-line skirts and empire waists generally look good on everyone. It's wise to consult with all your attendants before choosing a specific style, such as strapless, to make sure everyone will feel comfortable wearing it.

Time of the wedding and season: Use common sense. Don't under or overdress for the season. A velvet dress will be a little out of place at an outdoor wedding in July. On the flip side, bridesmaids will freeze in a short strapless dress in the middle of December. If you must have that strapless dress in winter, plan for shawls or bolero-type jackets to be constructed in the same fabric as the gown. Then, your girls will have a way to cover up if they become chilled.

Body types: While one maid is a size 2 and looks great in something short and tight, it might not flatter your tall, full-figured cousin who is a size 16. Also, try to draw attention away from problem areas that could be reasons for self-consciousness (hips and thighs) and focus on the flattering neckline instead.

Price: Generally, bridesmaids pay for their own dress and alterations, so factor in those costs when envisioning your dream gown.

Don't feel like you have do all of this by yourself. Make a few decisions yourself and then bring a few maids shopping with you. (Don't bring more than a few girls or it will get too chaotic). After you narrow it down, then you can get input from the rest of the crew.

Then it's time for all the bridesmaids to get measured. Measurements can be taken at the shop where you are getting the dresses, or the girls can get them done at their own tailor and give you their measurements. Order all the dresses at the same time to ensure they are from the same dye lot, or they might not all be the same exact color. Be sure to order the dresses far enough in advance so the gowns have time to be made and the girls can get them fitted.

Follow these tips and your bridesmaids will be smiling all wedding long!

Honoring Lost Loved Ones at Your Wedding

The emotions surrounding a loss of a parent become even more apparent during the times when we wish they could be there to help us celebrate. Milestones like graduations and birthdays can be particularly difficult. Weddings can be bittersweet for someone who has lost a parent, since the involvement of Mom and Dad is so evident in traditional wedding customs.

As such, the question arises on how to honor a deceased loved one on a day that is supposed to be joyous. There are mixed opinions on the subject. Some feel that it is distasteful and can drastically dampen the mood of the wedding. Others feel that when done properly, it can be a touching sentiment.

If you've made the choice to forge ahead with some type of memorial at your wedding, here are some key tips to follow, compiled from various wedding resources.

AT THE CEREMONY

Depending upon your religious affiliation or preference, it is often customary for one or both of the parents to walk a bride down the aisle. Rely on someone to stand in for a deceased parent, walk with a surviving parent, or hold your head up proud and walk alone. Here are some other pointers:

* Wedding planners and experts in bridal etiquette agree that the names of deceased parents should never be included on wedding invitations.

* Mentioning the names of deceased relatives at a ceremony may be very emotional for guests and the bride and groom. Couples are often urged against this for that reason.

* A flower arrangement dedicated in honor of the couple is a tasteful solution. Other remembrance ideas include a "memory table" with photos, or burning candles that signify the relative's presence at the event. These symbolic gestures can be noted in a wedding program and may be better received than spoken gestures.

* A moment of silence or a prayer dedication can also be touching, without having to specifically mention the deceased's name.

AT THE RECEPTION

The reception signals the beginning of a your new life together and a chance to let loose and celebrate. Why put an unnecessary shadow on the festivities? Rather than forgoing a traditional mother/son, father/daughter dance, ask for a special friend or other relative to stand in. Choose a song that isn't overly sentimental, but expresses the mood of the event.

Others often look at large events, like weddings, as an opportunity to stand up and make dedications and speeches related to the couple and the day. Perhaps you've seen someone express birthday or anniversary wishes to a fellow guest. In that regard, others may want to make dedications about the deceased. Speak to your DJ or band leader in advance about your preference to avoid these situations. Also consult with your videographer to edit out any moments you don't find to be in the spirit of your wedding.

With delicate planning and forethought, you can invoke the memory of lost loved ones on your wedding day without compromising the spirit of the occasion.

Fall in Love With an Autumn Wedding

Once you have announced your engagement, it is time to decide the date of your wedding. Many couples twist and turn over this dilemma as there are many points to consider when choosing the perfect date.

First, there is the weather, followed by the travel season and its impact on your honeymoon, the availability of your reception site and, finally, any other events that may be taking place that you'll need to schedule around. The time of year you choose is mostly a personal preference ,but one that shouldn't be considered lightly.

Late spring to early summer is by far the most popular time for weddings in most areas of the world. During this season, you have the best chance for warm weather, clear skies and beautiful blooms. However, because these months are so popular, you must compete with other couples for DJs, photographers and reception sites. In turn, many vendors increase their prices at these times because they are in high demand and can get top dollar.

A viable option is to celebrate with an autumn wedding. Early fall boasts crisp weather, picturesque and colorful foliage as the leaves change their color, and an inviting harvest appeal. That is why many are opting to exchange vows in September or October. Autumn weddings are also ideal when planning your honeymoon. By September, most children have returned to school, freeing up resorts for your desired retreat. Just keep in mind that this time of the month is hurricane season for some parts of the Caribbean, so plan your honeymoon accordingly. You might consider getting travel insurance just in case Mother Nature crashes your trip.

The rich hues of autumn provide an inviting backdrop for weddings.

If you decide to have an autumn wedding, here are some ideas to make your celebration special.

FROCKS AND FLOWERS

The weather may be cooler this time of year, so take advantage of it by choosing a gown with sheer long sleeves or one with a matching shawl.

* Depending upon where you live, roses, sunflowers, autumn foliage, gerber daisies and hydrangeas may be in season.

Ask your florist to use them for your bridal bouquets. The florist can use trailing vines, berries and interesting filler leaves to set the harvest tone of your wedding.

* Dress the bridal party in warm, autumnal tones of burgundy, maroon, brown and cream. Bright fall flowers will contrast nicely against the deep hues of these gowns.

PHOTO FLAIR

With rich landscapes and breathtaking color schemes, autumn will act as an ideal photographic backdrop.

* Take as many outdoor photos as the weather permits.

* If it is overcast on your wedding day, fear not. Bright sunshine can actually drown out photography and create awkward shadows. A slightly overcast day makes colors sparkle and prevents you from squinting into the camera.

Etiquette For Second-Time Brides

Planning a second wedding? For many couples who are getting married, it's common for either partner to have been married before. According to gettingremarried.com, nearly 50 percent of all marriages in 2003 were second weddings for at least one partner, if not both.

In the past, it was unheard of to plan a reception for a second marriage and most couples either chose to elope or have a small ceremony and dinner afterwards, inviting only a few close friends and family. But, times have changed and so have the rules of the game for what is considered acceptable when getting hitched a second time.

While some couples still choose to elope or have a small affair, others go for a more elaborate reception, even having their children participate in the ceremony. According to wedding consultant Denise Walpole, the growing trend seems to be couples tailoring their second, third and even fourth weddings to what works for them. So, whatever you decide, there's no right or wrong way to celebrate. But, remember, what is comfortable for one couple may not be for another. That's why it's particularly important to consider your preferences as a couple, as well as personalities, religion, finances, family customs and life situation when planning a second wedding.

Getting remarried? "Doing it your way," including not wearing a wedding dress, is perfectly acceptable for couples who choose to walk down the aisle a second time.

* Anything goes as far as a ceremony and/or reception. Keep it small and simple, or make it big. Either way,works today. The key is making everyone feel comfortable.

* If you don't want guests to give gifts, do not include a note about no-gifts with the invitation. However, as you receive responses to the wedding, you (your fiance, mother, or your maid of honor) should let the guests know that their presence is more than enough. Still, some guests may still give you a gift anyway. In that case, it is totally acceptable to ask that they make a donation to your favorite organization or charity.

* A bride who has been married previously can choose the wardrobe and flowers of her choice. While a white gown no longer symbolizes purity, many encore brides are opting for colored gowns and/or accessories. Many choose not to wear the blusher veil which, traditionally, symbolized virginity. Orange blossoms symbolize first-time brides, so encore brides may choose not to use them in their bouquets (but it's acceptable if they do).

* Encore brides can be given away by a father, a brother, or even a friend. Or, a second-time bride may choose to walk down the aisle by herself.

* Typically, the bride and groom host their own affair, but it is equally common for the parents of both the bride and groom to offer some financial support.

However, such help shouldn't be expected if the parents contributed to the first wedding.

All in all, there are no strict rules to follow for second marriages — only your future spouse and you can decide what's right.

How to Get Winning Wedding Photos

Photographs are no doubt an important component of your wedding celebration. You want memories that you can share through the years as you spend your life with your spouse. Photos provide a visual reminder of the joy of your wedding day.

Many couples agonize over the perfect reception site, wardrobe and menu for their wedding, but then casually choose a photographer from a telephone book or advertisement. Beware that this methodology could leave you with substandard wedding albums and photos you wish you could forget. That's why it is important to thoroughly work with your wedding photographer to ensure you have beautiful photos that will last a lifetime.

SCOUTING A PHOTOGRAPHER

Just as you visited several reception sites and auditioned countless bands or DJs for your event, so should you make a list of several photographers to get a feel for what services are offered. Have an idea of what types of photos you'd like, e.g. traditional portraits, photojournalistic candids, black-and-white or hand-tinted special effects. Keep these requirements in mind when interviewing photographers. Here are other tips to heed:

* Make sure the photographer you speak with and whose work meets your standards will, actually be the person shooting your wedding. Some companies farm out work to freelancers, resulting in a complete stranger knocking at your door come the big day. Put the name of your requested photographer in your contract so you have a legal leg to stand on should a "bait and switch" scenario occur.

Work together with your photographer both before and during the wedding to achieve lasting, beautiful photos.

* Ask to see three complete weddings that have been shot by the photographer. It's easy to look at a compilation of the "best shots," which may hide the many average shots that the photographer has taken. Better yet, see if raw proofs are available, so you'll be able to judge the photographer's expertise without the magic of photo retouching.

* Check to see what services are included in the photo package and what requires an additional charge. Sometimes black-and-white photography or special graphic touches are an extra charge.

* Find out how much time the photographer will spend with you, namely if the fee includes all-day coverage. Can you get shots taken before the ceremony at your home?

* Make sure you won't have to incur costs for the photographer's travel expenses, especially if your ceremony and reception are at different sites.

* Question their policy for emergency situations, such as if a backup camera is available if one breaks, or where they store the film before your photos are processed. You want to feel relatively safe that the large amount of money being spent will not be lost should a disaster occur.

* Find out if the photographer works alone or with an assistant. It is customary to provide a meal for your wedding vendors, so you'll want to plan accordingly.

BEFORE THE WEDDING

Consider making the photography process easy for the photographer and for you to help ensure quality photos. Schedule a decent amount of time between the ceremony and reception for a photo session. You don't want to rush your photos and end up with poor shots.

Also, take the time to make a list of any important photos you would like. Most professional photographers are seasoned veterans and take a standard line-up of shots. If you have a request, discuss it with the photographer in advance. Some special shots you may want to include:

* All of the bridesmaids together
* Bride with each bridesmaid
* Bride/groom with parents separately
* Combined family shots
* Photo with favorite pet
* Separate shot of siblings
* Separate shots of grandparents and extended family members
* Photos of the guests at tables
* Centerpieces, cake alone and scenery without people

Let family members know that they will be in special photos so that they are ready for the photographer's signal come wedding day.

THE BIG DAY

Try to remain calm during your wedding day so you will look relaxed and happy in your photos. Make sure the wedding party is punctual and cooperates with the photographer to facilitate the process. Try to limit drinking alcoholic beverages until after the bulk of the portrait-style photos have been taken so that you don't end up with an unruly and overly gregarious wedding party who can't stand still and say cheese.

Put someone in charge of rounding up family and friends who will be participating in photos. This way, the process goes on without a hitch and you don't miss your entire wedding beneath that scenic gazebo. Similarly, tell the photographer when you feel you've had enough posing and are ready to be the life of the party.

Dealing With the Jitters

You are about to take the plunge. You should be a glowing bride, but instead you are breaking out into a cold sweat. You are panicky about more than just whether the flowers will look right and if your mom or your mother-in-law will do anything to embarrass you on your big day. You are worrying about your spouse-to-be. Can you live with the fact that he can't be interrupted during a baseball game or how he leaves water all over the bathroom sink? Are you ready to spend the rest of your life with the same person?

Relax!

Pre-wedding jitters are common among those about to get hitched. Occasionally, there are real reasons to call off a wedding. But more often than not, it's just a case of cold feet. What should you do?

First, go to a quiet place to think. Do some deep breathing, and get in touch with your emotions. Ponder things like:

— What you enjoy most about your spouse-to-be — The moment you knew you wanted to spend the rest of your life with him/her

— What you look forward to during your marriage

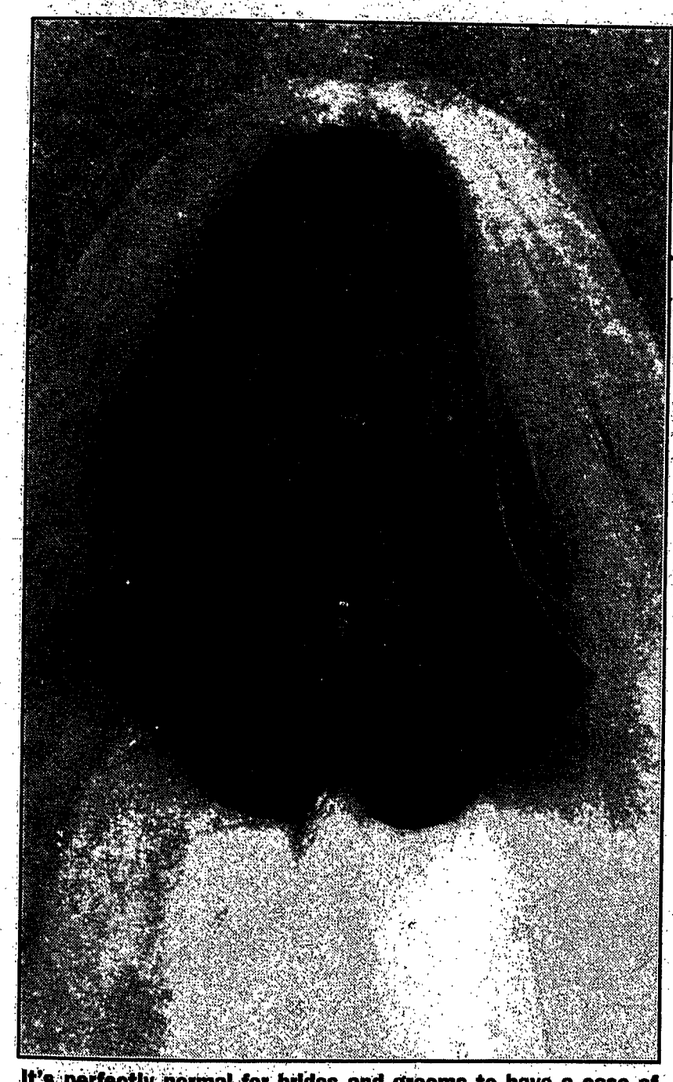

— Couples who have been married for years as a source of inspiration

— Changes in your partner.

Things like less bedroom activity or petty annoyances like the fact that he didn't empty the dishwasher this morning are related to wedding-planning stress. However, if your partner is really acting in a way or doing things you don't like or didn't know about him, such as abusing drugs or alcohol, speak to him or a counselor. Assess if these are short-term issues or ones that may persist after the big day. Serious problems may warrant that you postpone or call off your wedding.

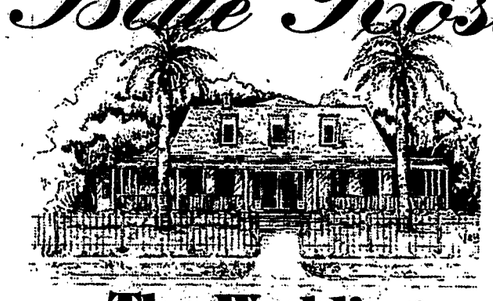

Most likely, you are both having the same jitters. If you have time, arrange a romantic evening with your partner that is free of talks about florists and photographers and away from both of your mothers!

It will ease the stress and reaffirm the reasons why you are getting married in the first place.

It's perfectly normal for brides and grooms to have a case of pre-wedding jitters.

Set Your Wedding to the Right Music

The secret of a great wedding is great music. The right song at the right time can evoke strong feelings and help solidify memories of the day long after the last slice of cake has been enjoyed. Yet, surprisingly, many couples don't focus as much on their musical entertainment as they do on choosing a reception hall or florist. Oftentimes they leave crucial music decisions to their DJ or band.

According to Gloria Sklerov and Barbara Rothstein, professional songwriters whose specialty is wedding music, and creators of WeddingMusicCentral.com, this can be a huge mistake. "While flowers, clothes and décor may make a wedding 'look' beautiful, it's well-planned music that makes a wedding 'feel' beautiful," says Sklerov, who has won Emmys for wedding songs featured on daytime TV soap operas and has written songs for Sinatra, Cher, and other top artists.

Think about the weddings you've attended. How did you measure the party's success? Probably by whether you had a good time. Experienced wedding coordinators know that music is the 'good time quotient' of a wedding. It's a good sign when guests get up and dance — frequently — and share in the emotions of sentimental moments like father/daughter, mother/son dances, etc. When the music is dull or constantly intrusive and there's little involvement, chances are the guests are waiting for the right time to say goodbye.

Music is the most emotional part of a wedding.

Sklerov and Rothstein realized that couples have 'no way of knowing what they don't know' and really do need expert music planning information to plan a successful wedding program. But now, thanks to them, brides and grooms everywhere have access to expert know-how and a step-by-step planning system with their book, "How To Set Your Wedding To Music," the complete wedding music guide and planner. Here are some of their tips for a memorable event:

THE CEREMONY AND RECEPTION

Create a plan: Visualize your wedding as a film, and think about the songs that would coordinate best with the scenes that unfold. For example, imagine the processional, the unity candle ceremony, the father/daughter dance, the mother/son dance, or even a special tribute to an important person in your life as you listen to sound clips of songs written especially for those moments.

Stay organized: Keep a notebook and jot down songs you've heard or ideas you've gathered. Then, when you finalize your choices and discuss them in detail with your band or DJ you can consider their suggestions without feeling pressured.

Book your DJ or band: Once you know your date, book as soon as possible. DJs and bands have distinct advantages and disadvantages. DJs are usually less expensive, take up less space and offer playback of original songs by original artists. Bands can provide live sound and make any occasion seem elegant. Generally however, they are costly and your songs will be interpreted by the band, not necessarily performed with the 'feel' you like or are used to.

Go beyond the boring and basic: Happily for the thousands of brides and grooms who have discovered Weddingmusiccentral.com, there's no reason for wedding music to be dull or ineffectual. The Web site offers an exclusive line of music CDs created especially for weddings by Grammy and Emmy-winning writers, artists and producers. The CDs feature contemporary arrangements of popular and classical wedding favorites, new songs for traditional wedding highlights such as the father/daughter and mother/son dances, unity candle and even songs for stepparents and families of second marriages.

"When writing for TV and movie scenes," says Rothstein, "we had to learn how to enhance each 'scene' with the right touch of emotion and to capture the significance of important moments in fresh new ways."

Keep your guests in mind: Consider the tastes of your guests. Make sure singles and older guests can enjoy the music as well. Include timeless standards and music of different eras that all guests will enjoy.

MUSICAL EXTRAS

In addition to the music that is played on your special day, songs and sentiments can be sent in advance of your wedding and afterward as well. You can 'send more than a card ... you can send a song' with the unique musical ideas that Sklerov and Rothstein offer with their Personalized CD Singles line:

- "Save the Date" CDs — featuring the classic "Chapel of Love" and your save-the-date information imprinted directly on the CD. Send them to your guests in lieu of the standard save-the-date card.
- Personalized Gift CD Singles — a selection of new songs for mom, dad or even bridesmaids and maids of honor. You can express personal sentiments for your parents and friends with a special song they'll love.
- CD Thank You 'Notes' — The new wedding thank you song, "Thank You For Your Gift Of Love" with your names imprinted on each CD is an original 'musical' way to say 'thank you' instead of sending an ordinary thank you card.

Do You Need a Wedding Consultant?

Long before Jennifer Lopez starred in the hit film "The Wedding Planner," brides-to-be have been pondering the question of whether they should rely on the services of a wedding consultant or plan the event themselves. Frankly, it all depends on what you think you can handle and if you can afford the services of a professional.

Before you make your decision, consider these truths about wedding planning:

* There are many details to consider, including invitations, vendors, dresses, tuxedos, budgets, contracts, out-of-town guests, accommodations and ceremony sites.

* Your budget could escalate if not properly managed.

* On your wedding day, you want to enjoy the festivities, not micromanage the details.

WEDDING PLANNER QUIZ

Now that you have a brief understanding of what's involved in wedding planning, take this brief quiz to help you determine if a wedding consultant is the way to go for you.

1. Do you have time for coordinating all the wedding activities, including visiting reception-hall sites and sitting with vendors?

2. Do you have personal knowledge about the reputations of florists, photographers, disk jockies and other vendors?

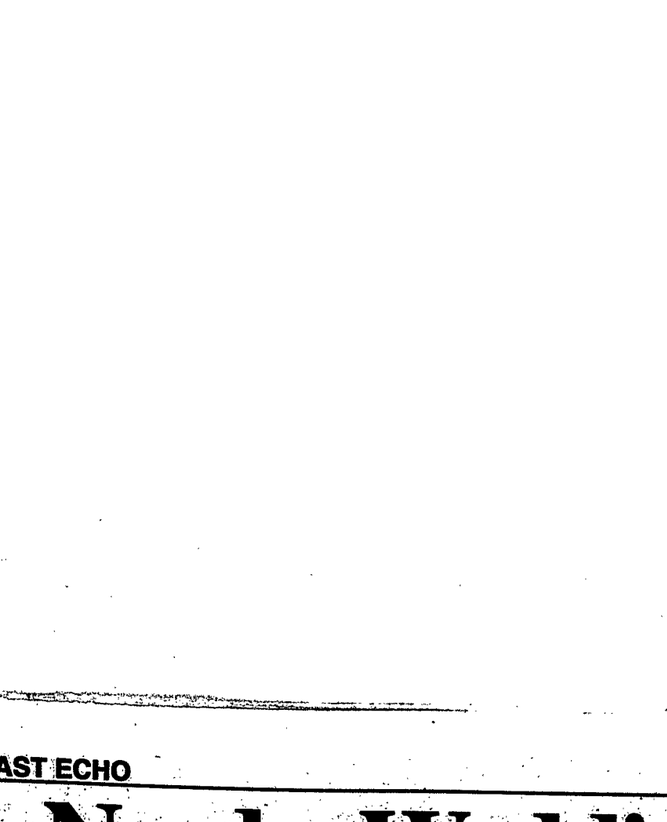

3. Do you know what to look for in a contract to thoroughly protect your investment with vendors?

4. Do you know the resources available to you to help keep your budget manageable?

5. Do you know the proper etiquette surrounding a wedding?

6. Do you know how to budget the wedding festivities?

If you answered "NO" to any of these questions, a wedding consultant might be the right choice for you. Here are some advantages of hiring a professional for your event.

A wedding consultant will free up more of your time so you can enjoy the months leading up to your wedding. He or she can handle the details, allowing you to relax a bit more.

WEDDING-PLANNER PLUSES

* When time is of the essence, a wedding planner may have many staff on call to help word invitations, assemble favors and coordinate the activities of vendors.

* Managing your budget is critical. A professional can help you create a look that seems expensive but really isn't. In addition, he or she may have relationships with vendors and be able to obtain discounts to help stretch your dollar even further.

* Etiquette at a wedding is more difficult to understand these days. He or she will also be a valuable resource for maintaining protocol for seating, photography and more.

* A wedding consultant will free up more of your time so you can enjoy the months leading up to your wedding. He or she can handle the details, allowing you to relax a bit more.

* On the day of your wedding, many things need to be executed in a timely fashion, such as limousine arrival, ceremony, photos and travel to your reception site. A wedding planner can manage these details, taking some of the burden off you.

If you just cannot afford to hire a wedding planner or want to do the planning yourself, enlist the help of a few trusted friends and family members.

Give them jobs you know they can handle.

If a friend has good penmanship, let her address the invitations. If your brother is a marketing whiz, have him organize vendor contacts. If you know a seamstress or tailor, ask for help with your wedding wardrobe.

Spice Up Your Wedding Festivities

Many prospective couples want their wedding to be unique, in an effort to bring even more excitement to their memorable day. Some adventurous couples have said their "I dos" underwater, decked out in full wedding regalia ... and a scuba tank. Others have plunged out of airplanes and committed to one another in a free-fall beneath the clouds.

Yet, if you want something different, but not so "exotic," you could try a theme wedding.

Brides magazine predicted that theme weddings would be a fast-growing trend in their September 2001 issue. That prediction has definitely turned out to be true. Theme weddings are limited only by your own imagination, and can run the gamut from fairy tale to western to ethnocentric. If you're considering a theme for your event, here are some ideas to get you on the right track.

DETERMINING YOUR THEME

Discuss your collective interests with your future spouse. It will be a good jump-start for determining a theme that appeals to you both. Themes can be as basic or as creative as you'd like. For example, if your wedding day is during an autumn month, a natural theme is a harvest wedding, replete with ripe pumpkins, corn husks, orange-hued décor and fresh apple cider. Or, play upon your heritage and culture. Incorporate native dances, embellishments and menu items into your ceremony and reception for a day that is not only memorable, but dear to older generations.

If you've always been a fan of Disney flicks but can't make it to Walt Disney World, consider throwing a Cinderella-themed wedding instead. Ride to the ceremony in a horse-drawn carriage. Wear dainty glass-slipper-inspired shoes with your billowing ball gown. And ensure that your future husband is an enchanting Prince Charming.

EYE FOR DETAIL

Feel free to get extravagant with the details of your theme wedding. After all, the décor, wardrobe and special touches you include will help solidify the theme. Some items to consider:

• Use coordinating accessories. Repetition of a common element is a simple way to carry out your theme. If you want a butterfly wedding, use pillar candles with butterfly accents and napkin rings adorned with butterflies, and hang delicate twinkle lights to simulate butterflies in flight.

• Involve your guests. While it's fun for you and the wedding party to be swept up in the theme, don't forget to include your guests in the festivities. A Renaissance wedding may inspire guests to dress in period clothing. Word invitations and seating cards in Old English to keep the tone of the celebration consistent. However, remember that not all guests may want to don a corset or carry a sword to the festivities! Keep participation voluntary and everyone will be smiling.

• Expect naysayers. Some family members or friends may not be receptive to your theme idea. Express that it is your big day and you reserve the right to have the party you desire — especially if you're paying for the event. To keep the peace, try to incorporate some traditional elements where possible.

Your theme wedding is certain to be memorable and will certainly be talked about for a while if done right. While a wedding is the beginning of a serious, life-changing event called marriage, there's no reason it shouldn't be as fun, extravagant or exotic as you'd like. So have fun with themes and get those creative juices flowing!

Thank-You Note Know-How

Once you say, "I'll marry you," you may be wearing more than just a ring — how about a wrist brace from writing dozens upon dozens of thank-you notes. Gifts are often plentiful from events like your engagement party, bridal shower, and, of course, your wedding day.

Unfortunately, telephone calls and e-mail won't fit the bill here. Instead, etiquette dictates that you send a handwritten thank-you note to everyone who gives you a gift. If someone gives you a gift for your shower and another for your engagement, you have to send a separate note for each gift.

Send one to everyone, even if it's your best friend whom you've thanked 1,000 times over. Thank-you notes also aren't just for tangible gifts like cash or those steak knives you registered for, though. Send thank-you notes to the person who let you have your engagement party at her home or who helped make your wedding day special, like your band, florist or photographer.

Notes should be written on stationery that complements the wedding. They are usually small, fold-over notecards with the words "Thank You" or your names on the front, and matching envelopes.

For less formal notes, you can buy basic thank-you cards or monogrammed or personalized stationery. Just remember to use your maiden name on any notes written before the wedding, since your married name can't be used until after the big day. You should write in blue or black ink, not a pencil or colored pen. Notes should express genuine appreciation and gratitude for the gift. They don't have to be long, but should mention the gift and how you'll use it. If you got that gravy boat that was on your registry, say that you can't wait to use it this Thanksgiving. For monetary gifts, you don't have to say, "Thank you for your $100 check." Rather, say what you will do with the gift, such as put it toward a payment on a home.

Get started on those thank-you notes as soon as possible. You don't have to write all 300 in one day. Pace yourself.

The rule of thumb is to mail shower thank-you notes within two to three weeks after the party. Early wedding gifts should be noted before your wedding day arrives. Old-fashioned etiquette says you have a year to thank everyone else who sends you a wedding gift, but try to get them finished by about three months after the wedding. The process could take a little longer if you're waiting on photo thank-you cards from your photographer.

Get the job done in that time frame by staying organized. Make sure no cards get separated from their gifts. Keep a record of all the gifts you received in a notebook, on your computer or on index cards. Be specific. Don't just say "flatware" say "Mikasa flatware." Record the giver's name, when you got the gift, what it was and the date you sent the thank-you note.

By the time you finish that last note, you'll be a professional at thank-you note writing. And you'll be prepared to do it all over again when you have your little bundle of joy!

Preserve Your Wedding Gown Properly

You spent weeks, maybe even months searching for it. And then you wore it in front of family, friends and your now husband. You were a vision of white topped with satin, lace, beads and more. Something as special as your wedding gown shouldn't just be tossed in a closet after the big day. Protect your gown by having it professionally cleaned and preserved by an expert dry cleaner or gown preservationist.

Have your gown preserved as soon as possible after the wedding so stains won't have time to set in. Every gown needs to be cleaned, even if it looks pristine. Stains like body oil and perspiration are invisible, but can turn the fabric yellow over time.

Question the cleaner or preservationist on his preservation process. Different cleaning solvents should be used on gowns than on regular clothing because traditional solutions are too harsh. If cleaned improperly, stains may appear or the fabric may yellow years down the road.

After it's cleaned, the gown will be wrapped and boxed. The folds of the dress and bodice should be stuffed with clean, acid-free tissue to prevent permanent wrinkles. Shoulder pads, perspiration shields or anything made of foam should be removed from the gown, because they can ruin the fabric when they eventually deteriorate. Then, the gown should be put in an acid-free box. Just be sure that you personally inspect the dress before it is boxed up to ensure that stains have been removed and that it has been packed properly.

Once you get the box to your home, don't just put it anywhere. Avoid stashing it in a hot attic, a cold basement, a trunk, a drawer or even the garage. Extreme temperatures can damage gowns. Instead, store it in a climate-controlled area of the home where there are few changes in humidity and temperature.

Experts suggest you open the box once a year to make sure the dress hasn't yellowed. When doing this inspection, wear white cotton gloves so oily fingers don't touch the fabric. Then, refold the dress to prevent permanent creases.

By following the right storage steps, you'll be able to keep your gown for years. And maybe it can even be an heirloom for your daughter to wear at her wedding someday.

Destination

on your budget, it can be as exotic as a private island or more economical, like an all-inclusive resort. Factors to consider include ease of understanding local laws, transportation convenience, available activities and amenities for you and your guests, including parks, sports, recreation, spa services, dining, and accommodation options. Unless you can jet-set to many places to see firsthand what they offer, consider hiring a wedding planner who can take care of these important details.

* Date: If you schedule your wedding when your destination has the best weather and the most festivities (tourist season), expect larger crowds and higher prices. Traveling off-season involves the chance of bad weather or travel problems. Try to plan your event just before or just after a tourist season.

* Legal issues: In the United States, most marriage bureaus require certain documentation to grant a marriage license. However, abroad, there may be further requirements or restrictions. For example, in Greece, national law prohibits certain interfaith marriages from taking place; brides and grooms may have to demonstrate proof of religious affiliation in order to legally wed. If you are having a foreign wedding, contact that country's consulate to find out what to expect.

* Give advance notice: Due to travel requirements and the need to reserve time off from work and home responsibilities, give guests ample notice of the big day. Send out save-the-date cards or invitations well in advance of your wedding so well-wishers have enough time to make the necessary arrangements. Also, be up-front about costs, namely what you can and cannot cover. Spell out in detail what will be required of the guests and how they can go about booking their trip.

Autumn

SET THE MOOD

As mentioned, autumn offers a cozy, inviting appeal. When the first leaves change color, it's the start of enjoying crisp weather and cool nights, drinking apple cider and snuggling up in front of a fire.

Incorporate these elements into the theme of your wedding.

* Keep the lighting low during your reception. Adorn each table with pillar candles surrounded by lush flowers in autumn hues. Choose an earthy wicker basket to house your floral arrangements, rather than a vase or candelabra.

It will make your guests feel more at home.

* On the table that displays your seating cards, showcase one large floral arrangement in a hollowed-out pumpkin or other item with autumnal aura. Place potpourri with an apple-cinnamon aroma to make the room smell inviting.

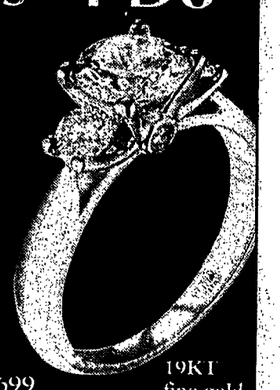

* Dress the tables in earth-toned linens. Creams, golds and browns will complement the oranges and russets in your centerpieces.

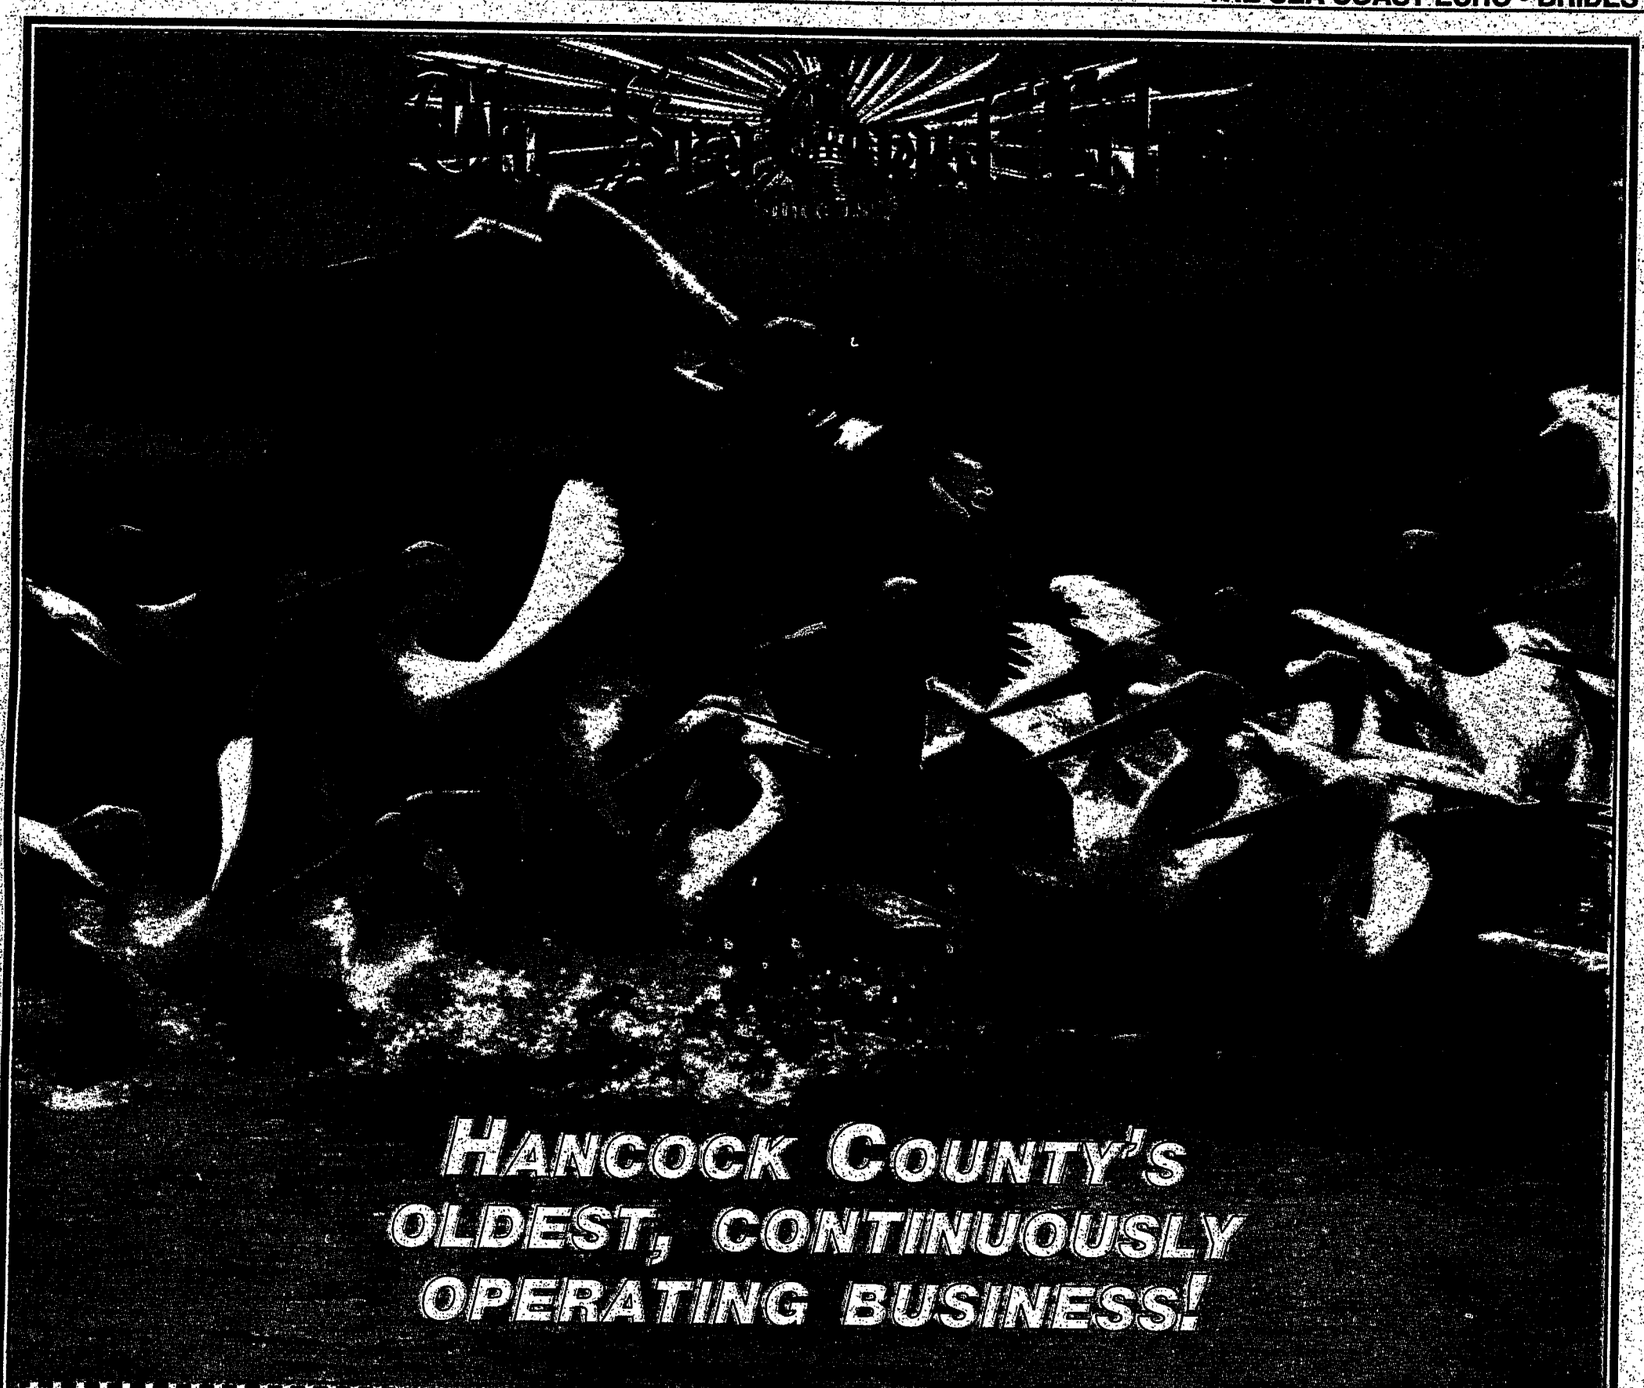

* Instead of numbering guests' tables, name them. Choose trees, flowers or destinations that tie into your theme. Your guests will enjoy and remember that they sat at the "Maple Table" over Table 2 any day.

'Happy Days' is here again with ABC reunion special

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

If there's something that many people could use now, it's another dose of "Happy Days."

ABC believes so, resulting in a new two-hour special that gathers virtually all the stars of the popular, nostalgic 1974-84 sitcom. Airing Thursday, Feb. 3, the "Happy Days 30th Anniversary Reunion" offers many clips, and elicits memories from Ron Howard, Henry Winkler, Tom Bosley, Marion Ross, Anson Williams, Don Most, Scott Baio, Erin Moran and others. Penny Marshall and Cindy Williams, alias Laverne and Shirley in an equally popular spinoff series, also drop by.

The success of the 1973 movie "American Graffiti" - which also starred Howard - is often cited as the inspiration for "Happy Days," but in fact, the show pre-dated that film as a 1972 episode of the ABC comedy anthology "Love, American Style." Instead of Bosley, Harold Gould played the father of 1950s Milwaukee teen Richie Cunningham (Howard). And there was no trace of anyone named Arthur Fonzarelli, aka leather-jacketed "Fonzie."

"Happy Days" has lived on as a staple of TV syndication, which a series doesn't do without elements that transcend time. Here are some of them:

Richie, Potsie and Ralph (Howard, Williams, Most): Pals to the end, this good-natured, admittedly nerdy trio went through seemingly endless misadventures together.

Fonzie: Aaaayyyy! Originally meant as a supporting character, "The Fonz" became as much a star of "Happy Days" as anyone. Credit that to actor Winkler, who made the biker relatable and three-dimensional.

Joanie and Chachi (Moran, Baio): So popular that they got their own spinoff show, the on-again, off-again lovebirds drew the younger part of the "Happy Days" audience as the show's original teens grew noticeably older.

The title song (performed by Pratt & McClain): The challenge was to come up with a tune that sounded as if it was of the 1950s, yet was modern enough for the '70s. It worked, to the extent that it became a major pop hit.

"NBA Basketball" Sunday, Jan. 30 (ABC, 1 p.m. ET): Houston Rockets coach Jeff Van Gundy has had trouble integrating the many talents of star swingman Tracy McGrady into his team-first philosophy. McGrady can score almost at will, but Van Gundy knows his team's chemistry needs to improve, notably between McGrady and third-year center Yao Ming, for the record to follow. No such issues exist in Miami, where the Heat's super duo of Shaquille O'Neal and Dwyane Wade play off each other beautifully.

"College Basketball" Wednesday, Feb. 2 (ESPN, 9 p.m. ET): The midpoint of the ACC schedule pits two of the elite conference's heavyweights - Duke and Wake Forest - in an intrastate showdown. Both have made a home for themselves in the top five this season, and likewise, their success on the floor starts at the top. That's where guards J.J. Redick and Chris Paul perform their nightly magic, Redick for the Blue Devils and Paul for the Demon Deacons. Paul, in fact, has drawn comparisons to NBA star Jason Kidd.

"Auto Racing" Saturday, Feb. 5 (Speed Channel, 12 p.m. ET): Stars from NASCAR and open-wheel racing test their driving skills and endurance in the 43rd running of Rolex 24 at Daytona, a twice-around-the-clock marathon on Daytona's 3.56-mile road circuit. Kurt Busch, Matt Kenseth, Tony Stewart, Paul Tracy, Scott Dixon and Buddy Rice are among those who will face competitors from the Grand American Road Racing Association while driving the unfamiliar Daytona Prototype cars used in that series.

Michael Cassidy

By John Crook
© Zap2it

No guy likes to find himself playing Rebound Dude to the girl he is dating, even if it's just on a TV show.

It's a thought Michael Cassidy keeps in the back of his mind while playing Zach, the charming newcomer to "The O.C." who has endured a bumpy romance with Summer (Rachel Bilson) since she broke up with Seth (Adam Brody) on the Thursday Fox series. The 21-year-old actor isn't even sure how long he'll be playing Zach.

"I honestly don't know, but I'm still working right now," he says, laughing. "That much I can tell you."

Cassidy got his first taste of acting at age 10 in a Portland, Ore., school presentation of songs from the Broadway show "Cats," but he really got hooked three years later when he was hired to play a dwarf in a local stage adaptation of "The Hobbit."

"There were two hours of makeup because of all the facial hair, so much work, but still absolute magic," Cassidy says of that experience. "It was the first time that I felt totally engaged, every part of me, so I was ready to just do anything."

By his junior year in high school, Cassidy was appearing in Shakespeare productions with a now-defunct professional company in his hometown, where he become friends with working actors who encouraged him to pursue his dream.

"I was surrounded by people, mostly family, telling me I needed to have a fallback plan, go to college," Cassidy says. "I didn't want to do that.

"Finally I said, 'My fallback is waiting tables.' "

He says he doesn't care about becoming a star, "beyond being able to just keep working, because there's just so much I want to do!"

Born: March 20, 1983, in Portland, Ore.
Training: The New Actors' Workshop in New York.
Family ties: Parents divorced when he was 10. Father works for a contracting company; mother is a schoolteacher. One younger brother, several stepsiblings.
First paying gig: A children's theater production of "The Hobbit" in Portland.
Near-miss: He was one of six finalists up for the title role in a "Superman" remake to be directed by McG, who sent him to "The O.C." after the movie deal fell apart.
On fame: "For an actor to do meaningful work, part of him has to be connected (to real life). How do you have that connection when you have to push everybody away just to keep your sanity?"

A&E hits the campaign trail to 'See Arnold Run'

By Kate O'Hare
© Zap2it

In America, any child can grow up to be president, provided he or she was born here. Someday that may change, and if it does, one large reason - in more ways than one - will be Arnold Schwarzenegger.

Premiering Sunday, Jan. 30, on A&E, "See Arnold Run" takes a seriocomic look at the rise and rise of the self-described "scrawny" Austrian kid who became a champion bodybuilder, a blockbuster movie star, a businessman and governor of California.

J.B. Rogers ("American Pie 2") directs from a screenplay by Matt Dorff ("Growing Up Brady"), which contrasts Schwarzenegger's freewheeling early years in Los Angeles in the 1970s - in which he's winningly played by Austrian bodybuilder Roland Kickinger - and his pursuit of the 1980 Mr. Olympia crown with his whirlwind campaign during the unprecedented California gubernatorial recall election of 2003.

German-born actor Jurgen Prochnow ("Das Boot") plays the older Schwarzenegger, with Mariel Hemingway ("Star 80") as his wife, TV journalist and Kennedy niece Maria Shriver.

"Part of this is my own experience as well," Prochnow says, "because I came to this country as a foreigner. I started in movies over here, and it was a whole strange world. But for him, it must have been even more so, because he came in the '70s with bodybuilding, then became a major movie star, without any acting experience, becoming even governor. This is something unheard of, and why people admire him. He became an American icon.

"I was just over in Germany. The interest (in this movie) is huge there, because in Europe, it wouldn't have happened, never, never ever. It's only because of the United States. The land of opportunity is over here, the way people are accepted." At this point, Prochnow slips into Arnold-ese: "Fahn-tahs-tic."

Larger than life in body and personality, Schwarzenegger has blended optimism, discipline and hard work to achieve all his goals, and politics was no different. When a petition drive - spurred in part by a measure to triple the already high vehicle license fee - forced a recall of Gov. Gray Davis, Schwarzenegger seized the opportunity. Able to bypass party primaries, he hit the ground running in a high-intensity, shortened election bid launched in an appearance on NBC's "Tonight Show."

"It was great," Dorff says, "seeing it unfold day by day. He's up; he's down; he's gonna win; he's gonna lose. He said the right thing; he said the wrong thing. It was a real-life drama about the education of a political rookie as well as this rip-roaring roller-coaster ride through California culture."

When Dorff saw candidate Schwarzenegger shrug off outrageous comments from the '70s, he knew he had something. "His first response was, 'I wasn't running for governor back then.' Then the idea hit me: How much has Arnold really changed in 30 years? Maybe inside the chest of the 56-year-old Arnold Schwarzenegger beats the heart of this wild and crazy European bodybuilder who fell in love with the American dream.

"Here's a guy where the externals could not be more different than 30 years ago, but internally he's still pursuing."

"He goes from being thought of as cheesy," Hemingway says, "to becoming the governor of California and quite well-respected and doing, I have to admit, a very good job."

As often happens, it's an immigrant's story that epitomizes the myth of the American dream. Now "myth" can be interpreted as a negative, as the embracing of something that's illusory, even deceptive. But a myth can also represent a vision of life as it should and could be, if only we walk the right path, work hard enough and believe in ourselves.

Jurgen Prochnow plays Arnold Schwarzenegger, and Mariel Hemingway plays wife Maria Shriver, in A&E Network's "See Arnold Run," premiering Sunday, which chronicles the actor's gubernatorial run.

In a state where mythmaking is big business, Schwarzenegger used his image as "Conan the Barbarian" (a slave who became "king by his own hand") and "The Terminator" (an unstoppable machine) to enthrall voters.

"I was amazed," Prochnow says, "how many lines he was using from his movies, like 'I want to terminate Gray Davis.' That's what people liked most. I personally cannot understand that much. I want the facts of what a guy wants to do with politics and what he has in mind. (But with Schwarzenegger) all these facts, they came in much later."

Lindsey Hartley delivers on 'Passions'

Lindsey Hartley

By Paulette Cohn
© Zap2it

"Passions" star Lindsey Hartley had one of the longest pregnancies in history. First there was her real-life pregnancy, and then, even after she delivered Isabella Justice Hartley on July 3, 2004, her character, Theresa, was pregnant on-screen and didn't give birth until December.

"I didn't mind it at all," she shares. "It was nothing like really being pregnant. You just put a pad on right before you go on set. You don't have all the extra things, like going to the restroom all the time."

The new mom leaves her baby at home because she is so busy at work, but her new daughter is always in her thoughts.

"Knowing that you have created this other person who loves you and you love because you made it with a person you love (is the best part of being a mother)," the actress says.

As for Theresa's future, Hartley reveals, "She just wants to get both her children back and be happy. She wants everything to be perfect and then realizes she can't move her legs."

Dear Paulette: I'm an avid sci-fi fan and watch some of the soaps with my wife, especially "Dark Shadows," "Passions" and "Days of our Lives." I know I have seen a lot of soap faces in sci-fi movies. The ones we argue over are: Marlena from "Days of our Lives" was "Electra Woman"; Kevin Sorbo ("Andromeda") was on some soap; Kate Jackson from "Charlie's Angels" was on "Dark Shadows"; Courteney Cox was the teen girl in "He-Man"; Tabitha on "Passions" was the nanny from "Nanny and the Professor." Thank you. -G.W.B., Baxter, Tenn.

Dear Reader: Stop arguing. Here are the answers: Yes, Deidre Hall (Marlena) starred in the short-lived "Electra Woman and Dyna Girl" series. If you blinked, you missed him, but Sorbo did play a deliveryman on "Santa Barbara." Jackson played Daphne on "Dark Shadows" from 1970-71. Cox starred as Julie Winston in the film version of "Masters of the Universe." Juliet Mills (Tabitha) played Nanny Phoebe.

Everybody doesn't love 'Raymond' reruns

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

Q ■ How can the final year of "Everybody Loves Raymond" be nothing but repeats? We deserve better than that. -Katharine Kirk, Shoreline, Wash.

A ■ Well, now, let's be fair. While it's true this last season of Ray Romano's CBS sitcom has involved a good number of repeats, not all the episodes have been reruns. The way it's turned out isn't really a surprise, since the deal was for the cast and crew to make 16 new episodes for the final year; that is less than the standard 22-episode order, so repeats have been used to fill out the show's run and land the final episode at the end of the season. The fact is that "Raymond" could have ended, and very nearly did, last spring. Executive producer Phil Rosenthal told TV critics last summer, "I'd like the audience to think of these 16 as encores."

Q ■ I was, and still am, a huge fan of "Lois & Clark: The New Adventures of Superman." I was wondering if a reunion show or TV movie is planned in the near future. -Sunny Johnson, Long Island, N.Y.

Ray Romano

A ■ Not that we know of, especially since Teri Hatcher - alias Lois - has this little thing called "Desperate Housewives" going now, and it would most likely preclude her from assuming her earlier role. Beyond that, Warner Bros. has been very cautious about having more than one "Superman"-related venture active at one time, which is why the studio is dancing carefully around the ongoing WB Network series "Smallville" in readying the feature film "Superman Returns," planned for a 2006 release.

Q ■ Is Anthony LaPaglia of "Without a Trace" the same actor who played Daphne's drunken brother on "Frasier"? If so, it was great acting. I hated him! -Betty Cushman, Rumney, N.H.

A ■ Yes, it's him, and Emmy voters agreed with you in 2002. They gave him an award for the recurring guest role, for which he also was nominated two other times.

Monday Best Bets

7 p.m. on 38-WB

7th Heaven

Lucy (Beverley Mitchell) goes all out to prove she's got motherhood nailed in the new episode "The Fine Art of Parenting." While Kevin (George Stults) wonders where he fits in, Annie (Catherine Hicks) worries about health risks to the baby from all the people Lucy invites over. Speaking of guests, Martin (Tyler Hoechlin) is the target of gossip — and blackmail — after a girl falls asleep on his couch so she can tell people they slept together.

7 p.m. on 6-NBC

Fear Factor

The new "Couples, Episode 5" is a shocker — literally. The remaining five pairs of contestants perform a stunt in which one partner guides the other, who is blindfolded, through a maze filled with tiny electrically charged trip wires. If one of those wires is tripped, both partners get a jolt. Joe Rogan hosts.

8 p.m. on 4-CBS

Everybody Loves Raymond

In "Not So Fast," Frank and Marie (Peter Boyle, Doris Roberts) are kicked out of their new home by the condo's owners. Where will they go? They sold the old homestead to Robert and Amy (Brad Garrett, Monica Horan). The younger Barones aren't exactly thrilled about having Frank and Marie move back in, but they agree to share the house with them.

8 p.m. on 38-WB

Everwood

The jig is up for Andy (Treat Williams) when Nina (Stephanie Niznik) finds out about his affair with Amanda (Anne Heche) in the new episode "The Perfect Day." A medical emergency forces Harold and Edna (Tom Amandes, Debra Mooney) to set aside their anger with each other. Ephram and Amy (Gregory Smith, Emily VanCamp) persuade Hannah (Sarah Drew) to play hooky.

8 p.m. on 6-NBC

Las Vegas

Jon Lovitz reprises his earlier guest role in "The Count of Montecito." The character returns to declare his love for Nessa (Marsha Thomason), who wishes he hadn't. Danny, Mike and Sam (Josh Duhamel, James Lesure, Vanessa Marcil) try to break up a card-counting operation. Mary (Nikki Cox) must initiate a group of topless female employees.

Happy Days

30th Anniversary Reunion

In this new special, Richie, Fonzie, Potsie, Ralph, Mr. and Mrs. C (Ron Howard, Henry Winkler, Anson Williams, Don Most, Tom Bosley, Marion Ross) join other "Happy Days" stars to reminisce about that '50s show from the '70s. They also play softball, a tradition producer Garry Marshall started during the show's run. The special also includes vintage clips, outtakes and a visit from Penny Marshall and Cindy Williams of the hit spinoff "Laverne & Shirley."

7 p.m. on 38-WB

Movie: Dr. Dolittle

Eddie Murphy plays the doctor with the interspecies communication skills in this 1998 remake, which bears almost no resemblance to the 1967 Rex Harrison version or Hugh Lofting's book. Kids won't mind; it's heavy on the bodily function jokes and other gross-out gags, and the talking animals are a riot. The guinea pig almost steals the show with his wiseacre comments voiced by actor-comic Chris Rock.

7 p.m. on 6-NBC

Joey

A movie star cancels an appearance on "The Tonight Show," and Joey (Matt LeBlanc) is invited to take her place. Getting there on time, however, becomes a major hassle, and Joey is getting antsy. Drea de Matteo, Paulo Costanzo and Andrea Anders also star in the new episode "Joey and the Tonight Show."

7 p.m. on AMC

Movie: Big Trouble in Little China

When his friend's fiancee is kidnapped, wisecracking truck driver Jack Burton (Kurt Russell) joins him in the quest to get her back, landing in a strange world of magic and mysticism beneath San Francisco's Chinatown. James Hong plays the villain, a centuries-old sorcerer who needs to marry a special woman to keep his power and immortality. Kim Cattrall, Suzee Pai and Dennis Dun also star in this 1986 fantasy adventure.

8:59 p.m. on 6-NBC

ER

Budget cuts are hitting the ER staff hard in the new episode "Middleman." Kovac and Pratt (Goran Visnjic, Mekhi Phifer) treat a man who threatened his boss with a gun but got shot himself.

7 p.m. on 38-WB

What I Like About You

In the new episode "Sex and the Single Girls," Holly (Amanda Bynes) regrets getting a new singing partner (guest star Joanna Pacitti) for Ben (David de Lautour) when she shows interest in Vince (Nick Zano). Lauren (Leslie Grossman) arranges a date for Val (Jennie Garth) with a food critic (guest star Benjamin King) in hopes of scoring a good review for the bakery.

7 p.m. on FAM

Movie: Austin Powers: International Man of Mystery

It's airing on a channel with "family" in its name and will probably be heavily edited, but you might want to think twice about letting the kids watch this 1997 comedy unless you want to do lots of explaining. Mike Myers does double duty as the mod-dressing title character and his nemesis, Dr. Evil, who emerge from a 30-year cryogenic nap to resume their feud in the 1990s. Elizabeth Hurley and Robert Wagner also star.

8 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

Hope & Faith

Rue McClanahan ("The Golden Girls") guest stars in the new episode "O' Sister, Where Art Thou?" as a resident of a retirement home who escapes while Hope and Faith (Faith Ford, Kelly Ripa) are catering a party there. The incident causes tension between the sisters because Faith is responsible for the woman's flight. As they work to mend the rift, they also find themselves trying to heal one between the woman and her own estranged sister.

8 p.m. on 38-WB

Reba

James Denton, currently appearing as hunky neighbor Mike on "Desperate Housewives," guest stars as marriage counselor Dr. Morgan, who's helping Brock and Barbra Jean (Christopher Rich, Melissa Peterman) with their troubled union. Reba (Reba McEntire) is caught in the middle when Morgan asks her out and Barbra Jean admits that she, too, is attracted to him. JoAnna Garcia also stars in the new episode "Date of Mirth."

8 p.m. on 6-NBC

Third Watch

In the new episode "The Kitchen Sink," Finney (Josh Stewart), with help from Davis (Coby Bell), puts his grief on hold to search for a young friend (guest star Zack Savage) who's been kidnapped by his abusive father. Carlos and Levine (Anthony Ruivivar, Yvonne Jung) come to an understanding of sorts about their relationship.

8 p.m. on 49-PAX

Movie: Fatal Instinct

The erotic thrillers of the 1980s and '90s inspired this 1993 parody, which could really use Leslie Nielsen. Armand Assante stars as a lawyer who moonlights as a cop but apparently leaves the investigative part of his brain at work; he has no clue that his wife (Kate Nelligan) is cheating on him and planning to kill him. Sean Young, Sherilyn Fenn and James Remar also star.

Rue McClanahan

8 p.m. on TBS

Movie: A Knight's Tale

9 p.m. on 6-NBC

Medical Investigation

Connor (Neal McDonough) and his team are in Baltimore to investigate a mysterious plague in the new episode "Mousetrap." Tracing its source proves tricky, especially when they discover that the sick include police officers and a fugitive. Then two children start to show symptoms. The team races the clock to contain the spread of the disease and take care of those already infected. Kelli Williams and Troy Winbush also star.

One of afternoon television's enduring stars marks a milestone in his role as Victor Newman of "The Young and the Restless." Daytime Emmy winner Eric Braeden celebrates his 25th anniversary on the CBS drama Tuesday, Feb. 1.

Self-made tycoon Newman has been a dynamic character ever since his introduction, and he has reclaimed the woman he loves, Nikki (Melody Thomas Scott). That is no guarantee that he won't make her, along with others in his life, miserable again.

A former Universal and MGM film production chief - for whom an honorary Oscar is named - is profiled in the new documentary "Irving Thalberg: Prince of Hollywood" Tuesday, Feb. 1, on Turner Classic Movies. Stanley Tucci narrates.

Known as the "Boy Wonder" for the professional magic touch he had at a relatively young age, Thalberg played a big role in devising the "star system" that made legends of screen icons such as Clark Gable, Greta Garbo and Jean Harlow.

Saturday Best Bets

7 p.m. on 6-NBC

Law & Order

An extreme makeover has a fatal result for a popular novelist in "Cut." Fontana and Green. (Dennis Farina, Jesse L. Martin) trace her death to a plastic surgeon (guest star Bruce Altman) who had performed liposuction on her recently. At Branch's (Fred Dalton Thompson) urging, McCoy (Sam Waterston) pursues a criminal case against the doctor rather than letting it be decided in a civil trial.

7 p.m. and TNT

11th Annual

Screen Actors Guild Awards

It's surprising that the versatile James Garner has so few major awards to his name: no Oscars, two Golden Globes and only one Emmy for acting. Now he gets some long-overdue recognition in the form of the Screen Actors Guild Lifetime Achievement Award. Like all the awards given here, this one is special because it's voted on exclusively by other actors. Individual actors and entire casts are honored in categories for film and television.

8 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

Desperate Housewives

In "Suspicious Minds," a bored Gabrielle (Eva Longoria) plans a fashion show featuring the women of Wisteria Lane, one of whom — Susan (Teri Hatcher) — is reeling after learning Gabrielle's secret. Lynette (Felicity Huffman) uses her business savvy to solve a problem at home. Bree (Marcia Cross) takes action with Andrew (Shawn Pyfrom). Nicollette Sheridan also stars.

9 p.m. on 6-NBC

Law & Order: Special Victims Unit

Mary Stuart Masterson guest stars in "Weak" as a psychiatrist who helps Benson and Stabler (Mariska Hargitay, Christopher Meloni) investigate a series of assaults. One of the victims is a patient of hers who has schizophrenia. The detectives find a likely suspect, but the evidence is telling conflicting stories.
